The Corn Crop Has Been Damaged 40 Per Cent.

Kansas	$200,000,000
Missouri	100,000,000

Nebraska	11,000,000

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The drought and temperatures, ranging from 98 to 104 degrees in Kansas, Missouri, southern Iowa and southern Illinois, have, it is estimated, destroyed 40 per cent of the corn crop in those states. This, with the government report that the acreage planted was 400,000 less than in 1900, made the government estimate of a 1,900,000,000 crop, in the opinion of experts, seem too liberal in view of the unfavorable conditions which have prevailed since July 1.

Conservative men now figure on a crop of 1,000,000,000 bushels. Not only has corn suffered in the states above named, but also fruit, oats and hay. The damage to the oat crop is particularly serious.

Nebraska, hitherto in the finest sort of condition, is beginning to feel the effects of the hot wave and unbroken drought. Reports from that state indicate that considerable damage has already resulted and more is imminent.

Iowa corn in turning up a little around the edges, but so far is not hurt, and a good rain would bring the state out all right. The same thing applies to Illinois in a general way, and with a late fall the backward crop will come out all right.

It is in Kansas and Missouri where the conditions are most depressing. In the Sunflower State all save the wheat seems to be wholly or in part destroyed by the blistering winds and the unclouded sun. In Missouri conditions are almost as bad.

Where the government gives a condition in Kansas corn of 74 per cent, it is far and away below that, nearer 25 per cent, in view of this later information. Missouri corn, according to the government, shows a condition of 70. That, too, has been changed since July 1, and the percentage must be greatly reduced.

$50,000,000 LOST IN TWO STATES

Missouri and Kansas Said to Be the Worst Sufferers From the Drouth.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Today's advices to the board of trade and commission houses are that the heat and drouth in the Southwest are still unbroken. It is said that the damage outside of Kansas and Missouri is comparatively slight, but that unless there is relief within the next ten days, the corn crop situation will approach a calamity.

A message from Topeka, Kan., says the prospects are for a crop of but 50,000,000 bushels of corn, although last year's crop was 163,000,000 and that of the previous year 237,000,000 bushels. The loss of hay and potatoes is also great, second only to the loss of corn. It is estimated that the farmers of Kansas and Missouri have already lost $50,000,000 by the torridity and drouth.

The straits in which the corn crop is said to be situated owing to the intense heat and lack of moisture is reflected in the course of that cereal on the board of trade. Corn for September delivery at the opening today sold simultaneously from 52 to 52⅝ cents, compared with the close yesterday at 51⅞@½c; shortly afterwards it was quoted at 52⅞c, or nine cents higher than the price one month ago shortly before the heat and drouth began to arouse misgivings as to the future of the crop. Not in years have natural conditions attracted the present prices for corn, although manipulation has at times forced them higher. There was a sharp demand from the country today, but local speculators sold to realize profits, claiming that all damage so far had been amply discounted by recently prevailing prices. September oats today sold at 33 cents, 1¼ cents higher than yesterday's close and 7 cents higher than a month ago. Wheat, however, is lower than it was June 12, although the September delivery at the opening today showed an advance of 1⅛ cents over the previous session's final figures.

THE OLD YACHT WINS THE RACE

Columbia, in a Stiff Breeze, Outsails Constitution.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BATEMAN'S POINT, July 12.—2:10 p. m. —Columbia wins, crossing line at 2:09:37.

The Constitution crossed the line 2:10:58. At that time the Independence was just 10 minutes behind the other boats. The Columbia beat the Constitution at the finish by one minute and twenty-one seconds, as estimated from shore.

BATEMAN'S POINT, July 12.—Constitution, Columbia and Independence engaged today in a race over a triangular course to complete the series of trials.

The yachts crossed the line in the following order: Columbia, 11:11:02; Independence, 11:11:20; Constitution, 11:12.

At the start the wind blew a stiff 13-knot breeze.

Independence, when just over the line, broke her topmast, but continued in the race.

Columbia continued her lead up to the second mark, when Constitution gained a little on her, both making short tacks.

As seen from shore the Columbia turned the first mark at 11:53:40; Constitution, 11:57:30; Independence, 12:00:30.

Constitution was beaten by Columbia in yesterday's race by shifting in the strong breeze and by the better judgment and quick maneuvering of Skipper Charles Barr on board Columbia. Luck was against Constitution all through the race. When she held the weather berth and stood off looking for a stronger breeze she almost invariably caught some time after the other boat did and they were enabled to point higher and creep up from their leeward positions.

Constitution's crew were also slower in handling the sails than the crews of the other boats. On the run home after turning the mark Constitution passed Independence and gained one minute 15 seconds on Columbia, proving her speed the greatest. Whenever the three boats got going together under the same wind conditions Constitution outfooted and outpointed her rivals. The surprise of the day was the splendid showing of the despised Boston scow under the able handling of Hank Haff.

The Columbia apparently turned the second mark at 1:25:30; Constitution, 1:26:40. Both broke out No. 1 jib and headed for the finish.

The Independence appeared to have turned the second mark at 1:31:45.

THREE MONTHS WITHOUT RAIN

Central and Western Missouri Parched by a Drouth That Began in April.

From a Post-Dispatch Staff Correspondent.

VERSAILLES, Mo., July 12.—Central and Western Missouri are now approaching the end of their third month without rain. On the 17th day of April there was a heavy snow. Since that there has been no rain. And this is the 12th of July.

No such blight has been known in all the years until now. The country is burned. Everywhere west of Jefferson City one looks from the car window out over an endless pasture land whose grasses are golden as ripened grain. The wind from the plain is the breath of a blazing furnace. The creeks, ponds and springs are dry—have been dry these 30 days. There is no food for the stock. It must be rounded up and hurried off to the market regardless of prices, lest it die in the field. All along the Missouri Pacific, through Morgan and Monitou Counties, one sees the farmers hurrying their cattle and hogs to the stations, to be shipped ere they are lost.

One sees out here in Missouri today some things reminded of the three and one-half years of drouth visited upon Israel 2800 years ago in the reign of unbelieving Ahab. There are great fields of two-foot corn in the tassel. The evening and morning bring a procession of water wagons along the country roads. The old oaken bucket, with its mosses and cooling contents, has given way to the sun-blistered water barrel. People who have all their lives refreshed themselves with cool well water in summer are drinking out of a carpet-covered barrel, water of about the temperature of consomme.

The fruits of the field, the orchard and wood are all in destruction alike. All this part of Missouri would have had a big fruit crop but for the drouth. There would have been a world of blackberries but for the drouth. Corn would have grown in abundance but for the drouth. There would have been sweet pasture lands for the stock but for the drouth. The country would have enjoyed a season of plenty but for the drouth.

At Tipton, Versailles and some other of the Missouri towns, I noticed an unusual number of farmers in town. I inquired of a man to know why so many of them came in.

"O, they come in to talk about the drouth. There's nothing else to do until we have rain."

Some of the stock through here has perished for want of water and pasture. Some of the biggest springs in this part of the state have gone dry for the first time in memory. The creek beds are every one a blazing aisle through the stunted corn and the withered pastures. This is not a wheat country. The drouth would be less terrible if it were; for the wheat is harvested and safe. It is more a corn and stock raising country, and the corn and the stock are suffering alike.

Joel D. Hubbard of Versailles is one of the first citizens of this part of Missouri. He is the man who attracted attention by defeating Dick Bland for Congress. Dr. Hubbard is a banker at Versailles. He said to the Post-Dispatch:

"This is the most disastrous drouth we have ever had in this part of Missouri. We are now within a few days of three months without rain. Four years ago we had a severe drouth. Our people had just about recovered from it.

"The corn is almost wholly lost. We have been compelled to ship out our stock. There is nothing here for stock to eat. The fruit is almost, if not quite, beyond saving. The result of all this is going to be a hard winter for this part of Missouri. We have simply burned up here in the last 30 days. No one who has not visited this part of the country can realize how terrible is a severe drouth."

Which is true. The locusts sent upon Egypt could not have been so much more hurtful than this three-month absence of rain over here in Missouri.

General Appropriation Bill, If Passed by City Council Friday, Will Relieve Acute Distress—Three Months' Salaries Due.

Thirty thousand persons dependent on the city of St. Louis are anxiously awaiting the action of the City Council upon the annual appropriation bill at its meeting at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Since April 1, not a cent has been paid by the city treasurer to the 4991 clerks, overseers and laborers employed in the various branches of the city government, exclusive of the police department.

City employes are mostly men with families. Estimating that five persons are dependent upon each employe, it will be seen that nearly 30,000 are directly concerned in the passage of the pending bill.

No less deeply interested in the measure are the 500 or more retail storekeepers, who have given credit for the past three months to the city's employes. These tradesmen, too, are men with families, and the tying up in the city treasury of the amounts due them have caused the most widespread embarassment, which has extended to the wholesale dealers and to all concerns with which they have dealings.

The city's creditors who furnish supplies and contract service of all kinds have gone without their pay for the same length of time. To them a total of more than $312,000 is due.

Contractors Also Feel the Pinch.

Sprinkling contractors are in financial distress from the city's failure to pay them, and the entire shutting off of the sprinkling service has been averted only by the agreement of the street commissioner to remit the fines assessed against the contractors for defective work.

The companies holding the city lighting contracts cannot be held to the strict performance of their contracts by the city, for fear that they might discontinue service, as they have for the past two months had a right to do under their contracts.

Laborers of the street, sewer, park and wharf departments, who are paid by the day, and whose ability to secure credit is limited, have, in many cases, been brought to the verge of actual destitution.

In the case of the 520 firemen, who are proverbially "good pay," the greater part of the burden has been shifted to the retail store keepers. In cases where a half dozen firemen live in the same neighborhood and trade at the same store, the effect on the store keeper has been disastrous.

City Fathers Are Least Affected.

Least affected of all persons on the city pay roll are the 13 councilmen and 28 delegates, all of whom have private business interests, and whose disagreements have been responsible for the delay in the passage of the bill.

The nearly 2000 judges and clerks of the last two elections, whose total claims exceed $75,000, are creditors of the city in smaller amounts than those who devote all their time to work at the City Hall, but nearly all of them need the money, and they are among the most interested watchers of the measure's progress.

Most of the members of the office forces of the assessor, register, comptroller, Board of Public Improvements, city marshal, coroner, treasurer and the employes of the Assembly are newly-appointed and have received no pay since taking their offices. Their share of the amounts included in the payrolls are divided in most cases with the former employes of these departments, whom they displaced between April 1 and May 1.

In the health department a constant violation of the city charter is carried on by the approval of requisitions for which no money has been appropriated. This is absolutely necessary in order to keep the inmates of the city institutions from starvation.

A Few Employes Not Severely Affected.

Employes of the city institutions are among those suffering least from the long financial drouth. They get their meals at their places of employment, and so have the advantage of those who have to pay for groceries. Their salaries are, in most cases, small and all are badly in need of their money.

Friday's meeting of the Council is now the center of all interest in and about the City Hall.

The passage of the House, or Sweeney, bill by the Council on Friday would mean the end of the long deadlock. If the bill were promptly signed by the speaker of the House and the mayor, the city employes would be paid early next week.

If the Council passes the Council bill, which also is in its hands, the deadlock is likely to continue.

Posse Comitatus Item Causes Trouble.

The difference between the two bills is that the item of $102,000 for the sheriff's posse comitatus is contained in the Council measure and is not in the House bill. This item has been one of the causes of the delay in passing the bill, and is now the only obstacle to agreement.

In the Sweeney bill the $102,000 is not appropriated for any other purpose, but is left in the city treasury. In this respect the situation is simpler than the deadlock which developed over the temporary appropriation bill in May and June. Then the House desired to give the $102,000 to other purposes.

The passage of the bill will be the signal for the payment of $987,000 from the city treasurer's office. Of this amount, $673,826.75 will be paid to city employes and the remainder to the city's other creditors.

AVAILABLE MAN NOT YET FOUND

World's Fair Directors Seek Directer-General.

OUTSIDER MAY BE CHOSEN

SPENCER AND MORTON SAID TO HAVE REFUSED IT.

President Francis and Foreign Relations Committee Will Give Dinner to Minister Robt. McCormick at the Country Club.

The directors of the St. Louis World's Fair are having a busy search for an available man for director-general.

President D. R. Francis said to the Post-Dispatch Friday morning:

"We are looking for the right kind of a man for director-general. The task is not an easy one, for when we find a man who fills the bill he is not always available.

"There is no prospect of action on that matter until we find the man we want."

The duties of the director-generalship are of an important nature, requiring executive ability of a high degree in addition to a comprehensive knowledge of all subjects that are embraced within the plan and scope of the fair.

A member of the organization committee, which has the task of finding "the man for the place," told the Post-Dispatch that the director-generalship had not been offered to Howard Elliott.

Corwin H. Spencer and I. W. Morton, two other St. Louisans, it is said, have refused to consider a proposition to accept the position.

In this dilemma the directors are said to have turned their attention to an outside man, and it is not unlikely another effort will be made to induce William I. Buchanan, director-general of the Pan-American Exposition, to come to St. Louis.

The executive committee of the Fair will meet at 3:30 o'clock Friday afternoon.

President Francis said that only routine business will be considered.

A dinner will be tendered Robert S. McCormick, United States minister to Austria, at the Country Club Friday evening by President Francis and members of the foreign relations committee. A special trolley car will leave Fourth and Olive streets at 5:15 o'clock with the party.

John Schroers, chairman of the educational committee, is greatly pleased with the committee on educational exhibits appointed by the National Educational Association at Detroit upon his suggestion.

"The personnel of the committee is of the very highest character, and St. Louis is honored in getting such men on its committee," said Mr. Schroers.

"I have written Dr. William T. Harris, chairman of the committee, asking that body to suggest the name of one or more men suitable for the position of superintendent of the educational department."

Charles Howard Walker of Boston and Thomas R. Kimball of Omaha have reassociated themselves under the firm name of Walker & Kimball and will be a member of the World's Fair architectural commission. Mr. Walker will meet the other architects at Buffalo Monday.

The press and publicity committee will provide the local Elks with World's Fair badges for their convention at Milwaukee, July 23-25.

The G. A. R. reunion at Cleveland will be similarly taken care of. The committee has authorized the employment of two men at Union Station to put World's Fair stickers on trunks.

"NO RAIN NEAR," SAYS HYATT

Weather Man Predicts More Hot Weather—St. Louisans Didn't Sleep Much Thursday Night.

SLIDE!!
HOLD YOUR BASE
NOW YOUR OFF! GO IT!

Dr. Hyatt got on the safe side of the meteorological map Friday morning by predicting a continuance of 100-degree weather. The mercury failed to go down, as Dr. Hyatt said it would Thursday night, and a temperature varying between 100 and 86 degrees did not have a soporific effect on St. Louisans.

At 6 p. m. Thursday the silver dot registered 100 degrees, and at midnight had backed down to 91. From that hour to 7 o'clock Friday morning there was a gradual decrease and then—well, then Old Sol got at it again, and the thermometer resumed its high-stepping antics.

At 11 o'clock weather stock was quoted at 95, with indications of another strong rise at noon.

Dr. Hyatt remarked sorrowfully that Massachusetts had enjoyed a heavy rainfall during the night, and Bostonians could eat pork and beans without fear of being sunstruck.

"We must bear up with present conditions patiently," said Dr. Hyatt, "because we're not worse off than other western cities. Rain is possible, but as there are no clouds in sight it is hard to say how soon it may materialize."

St. Louis was about the hottest place on the map Thursday. The maximum temperature for the last 24 hours was 104 and the minimum 78 degrees.

THE WEATHER INDICATIONS.

PIRIE MURDER SUSPECT WILLIAM CORDELL, A NEGRO, ARRESTED LAST NIGHT

He Is Wanted on the Theory That the Murderer of Pirie Is the Man Who Robbed Casper Ronsiek on the Same Night.

RONSIEK IDENTIFIES HIM

Detective Cabanne of Capt. McNamee's Mounted District Arrested Cordell and Took Him Over the Route of the Murderer's Flight.

—Photographed by the Post-Dispatch.
WILLIAM CORDELL,
Pirie murder suspect who was arrested by Detective Gratiot Cabanne in St. Louis County Thursday night.

William Cordell, a negro, suspected of being the slayer of Andrew H. Pirie, was arrested at Carsonville, St. Louis County, at 9 o'clock Thursday night by Detective Gratiot Cabanne, working under direction of Capt. George T. McNamee of the Mounted Police District.

Cordell was locked up over night at the calaboose in Ferguson, and on Friday morning he was brought to St. Louis and locked up at the Mounted District station.

Mayor Fred A. Reid and Marshal Charles Graf thought it unsafe to keep him in the insecure Ferguson calaboose.

Cordell was arrested on the theory that the same man that robbed Caspar H. Ronsiek murdered Mr. Pirie. Cordell is an ex-convict.

Ronsiek, who was robbed near Ferguson on the same night that Mr. Pirie was murdered, looked at Cordell after he was arrested, and he said:

"I do not believe it possible that I can be mistaken in proclaiming him as the man who assaulted and robbed me."

Cordell is about 42 years old, and for nearly a month he has lived in a small shanty on the Natural Bridge road about one-eighth of a mile west of Carsonville, on the Suburban road.

He lives alone, his wife having died two years ago.

The day after the two crimes Cordell was seen in a saloon at Florissant, where he made a display of money.

That night he was at Miller's saloon in Carsonville, and when he paid for drinks it was noticed by the bartender that he had a large roll of bills. Young Miller observed that a $20 bill was on the outside.

Ronseik Knew His Assailant.

When Mr. Ronsiek reported his robbery he told Marshal Graf that he believed he knew the man who robbed him. He had Cordell in view at that time. He knew Cordell by sight, but did not know him by name.

With this information Marshal Graf and Mayor Reid enlisted the aid of Capt. McNamee. Detectives Rice and Cabanne were detailed on the case. The detectivs vrified the county authorities' information, looked up Cordell's record, and Thursday night Detective Cabanne felt that the time for making the arrest had arrived.

It was agreed that Marshal Graf and Detective Cabanne should meet at Carsonville at 9 o'clock and make the arrest. By some means there was a misunderstanding. Detective Cabanne was on time, but Marshal Graf failed to keep the appointment. Fearing that Cordell might depart, Detective Cabanne determined to make the arrest alone.

Cabanne went to Cordell's hut without Graf. The hut is about 200 yards from the Natural Bridge road, and is in the center of an apple orchard. There was no light in the house, and the structure could barely be discerned in the dim light.

Cordell was seated in his doorstep when the detective approached. Cabanne spoke pleasantly and approached within reaching distance. He quickly seized the negro's wrist before the latter was aware of his intentions.

Cabanne jerked him to his feet, informing him that he was under arrest and feeling in his pockets to see if he carried a revolver. Cordell made no offer of resistance.

At first he profesed to not know his visitor. Then he said that he was not surprised and was expecting a visit from the officers, as he had been told by a friend that he was suspected of having shot Pirie.

Cordell denied that he had a revolver. A search was made and a long 38-caliber revolver was found concealed under the stove. In a corner of the room was a shotgun, loaded.

Cordell expressed willingness to accompany the officer. Asked if he had ever been arrested before he said no. When pressed and told of his record he admitted that he had served one term of three years in the penitentiary for grand larceny, stealing meat from a smokehouse in Florissant.

He could not tell at first where he got the revolver. Then he said he got it in a wreck in St. Louis three or four years ago. He said he did not steal it. He just picked it up.

He then said that the building had been wrecked by fire. He could not tell where the building was. The weapon was nickeled and bright.

The handle was of gutta percha. There was no evidence that it had ever been near a fire.

And yet Cordell said that he worked for three weeks on the building which was burned down.

This information was the result of inquiries made by Cabanne while he was taking his prisoner to Ferguson. On the way to Ferguson Cabanne met Marshal Graf and Mayor Reid.

Detective Rice also joined the party, and Cordell was taken to Ferguson, where the city hall was lighted and Cordell was questioned for an hour.

He was searched. A pocketbook was found. It contained $9.15. Cordell said that he had been sick for a month and had not worked but a very few days.

Asked where he got his money, he said that he got $3.25 from the sale of some chickens. He said he had bought the chickens from Fred Bendebeutel, a butcher at Ferguson. He paid $4.50 for the chickens. Then he said he paid Jim Shovey $1 to haul them to the house. He sold the chickens, he said, at a sacrifice because he needed the money.

He could not state what he needed the money for nor where he got the remainder.

Taken to Scene of Pirie Murder.

From the City Hall Cordell was taken, after midnight, to the scene of the Pirie murder.

He was placed in exactly the position that the man who shot Mr. Pirie must have stood when he confronted his victim.

The man could not be seen at a distance of ten feet, so dense was the shadow.

Cordell was visibly affected when standing under the tree where the murder was committed.

He repeated that he knew nothing of the crime. His attention was called to the fact that a portion of the fence had been removed since the shooting.

He said yes, he had noticed that, and then in the next breath he said he had never noticed the fence.

George Cherbonnier lives in the house on Chambers road, next adjoining the place where Mr. Pirie was killed. Cherbonnier saw the murderer running away from the scene of the crime, and fired one shot at him.

Mr. Cherbonnier was awakened by Detective Cabanne and told that he was wanted to see if he could recognize a man who had been arrested.

Cherbonnier took the same position that he held on the night of the murder. Under Cabanne's direction Cordell ran down the Chambers road over the same course that Pirie's murderer took.

He was instructed to turn into Mintz' pasture at the same spot where the murderer crossed the road.

Cherbonnier stood in the same spot where he had fired at the assassin. He looked intently at every move.

Then he told the detective and the Ferguson officials that Cordell was the counterpart of the man he had seen.

He was the same size and had the same general appearance, but he could not identify the features as he had not seen the face of the man who killed Pirie save at a distance of at least 75 feet.

Marshal Graf awoke John Woolman, who sleeps in a shed at the edge of the Mintz pasture. On the night of the murder the murderer in making his escape passed within 50 feet of Woolman's bed. Woolman was awakened and he got a view of the man as he was running toward him.

Cordell was instructed to follow the path as indicated by Woolman. He did so with reluctance and Woolman watched him intently.

Early Friday morning Caspar H. Ronsiek reached Ferguson to se if he could identify the prisoner.

Cordell was led from the close little prison where he had been confined during the night and was taken across the street to a grass plot beneath some shade trees. Here he was closely scanned by Ronsiek.

Ronsiek said that he did not believe it possible for there to be two men looking so much alike as his robber and Cordell. He said that they were the same in every respect.

Ronsiek, in struggling with the man who robbed him of $175, injured his thumb on the trigger of his assailant's revolver. The trigger pressed into his thumb and cut the flesh, which has not yet fully healed.

Holding Cordell's weapon in his hand in the same position in which he held the one the night he was robbed, the trigger fitted the injury to perfection.

Woolman Thinks Cordell Is the Man.

"This man is the counterpart of the man I saw that night," said Woolman. "He wore a suit of clothes like this man. I was not close enough to the man to get a good view of the face, and yet the same general appearance is the same.

"The figures are the same and the color is the same. I have always said that the man who shot Mr. Pirie was a mulatto. I could not swear positively that this is the same man, but I believe it is."

Cordell was taken back to the scene of the murder, where he was put through another course of questioning. He was impressed with what he had undergone, and the flippancy which he manifested when he was first arrested had departed.

"I never shot Mr. Pirie, nor I never robbed Mr. Rosenseik," he said. "I know you all think I did. Innocent men have been convicted before, and if you convict me you will convict an innocent man."

Detective Cabanne, Mayor Reid and Marshal Graf left Ferguson at 8:15 o'clock with their prisoner and took him to his house down on the Natural Bridge road. The night before it was too dark to see the premises and Cordell had no lamp. The search revealed nothing of importance.

Jim Shovey, who, Cordell said, had hauled the chickens for him, was found. He recalled the incident and said that it was more than a year ago. Cordell stated several times that it was about two weeks ago.

At Cordell's home the officers boarded the Ferguson car on the Suburban for St. Louis. The party was met at Union avenue and the Suburban tracks by the patrol wagon, and the entire party was conveyed to the Forest Park Police Station, where Capt. McNamee reviewed the case and compiled the evidence.

Among the things that Capt. McNamee places much importance in is a letter which Marshal Graf received a few days ago from J. J. Sullivan, foreman of the Ferguson brick yard where Cordell was formerly employed.

This letter stated that Cordell had not worked for months. That his income must have been almost nothing. And yet he had been seen several times recently with large sums of money.

Dick Lewis, an employe on the same yard, had also seen Cordell and had observed the large amount of money that he had.

Detective Cabanne and Marshal Graf visited this brick yard and talked with several of the employes. Lewis and one or two others said that they would make a full statement in the event that Cordell was arrested, but they feared to gain his enmity.

Since Cordell was released from the penitentiary he has shot one man, and he bears the reputation of always going armed.

It is the theory of the police and Ferguson officials that Cordell committed both crimes that were committed in that vicinity on the night of June 29. Cordell says that he was at Frank Gregg's house on the night in question. He left there at 9 o'clock.

Ronsiek was not robbed until 9:30 and within half a mile of Gregg's place Pirie was shot at 11:30.

Detective Cabanne discovered that on the night of the robbery Cordell was at Ronsiek's house and asked Mrs. Ronsiek what time her husband would return.

He was not at Ronsiek's saloon that night and Mr. Ronsiek says that on nearly every other Saturday night he can recall Cordell was there.

GLENN'S IDENTITY SEEMS CLEAR

Many Witnesses Knew the Woman as a Man.

FALSE TEETH ONE CLEW

DEFENSE MAKES A POINT OF PRISONER'S LAMENESS.

Attempt Will Be Made to Show That One Leg Is Shorter Than the Other—Bert Glenn Did Not Limp.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., July 12.—So far as the opinion of witnesses can be regarded as evidence, Ellis Glenn, the woman on trial here for forgery, has been fully identified as the person who was known as a man bearing the name of E. B. Glenn in West Virginia in 1896.

S. T. Prettyman of Williamstown in his testimony said:

"I recognize this person here in court, dressed in female attire, as Bert Glenn, one and the same person who was in Williamstown in fall of 1896."

John Richards, after stating that in his opinion the prisoner was the same Glenn he knew in Williamstown in 1896, told how he had been in the criminal court in September and had seen Glenn.

"The moment I set eyes on her I recognized her as the same Glenn who had been in Williamstown," continued the witness.

Squire Beeson positively recognized the defendant as the Bert Glenn he had known as a man in Williamstown.

Beeson said the strange peculiarity of Glenn's voice caused him to recognize her. "I remember that at one time while in a room where Glenn was hanging paper I heard her say she was built for prizefighting, and she used to tell me about some of the little rounds she had had.

Mrs. Galbraith testified that E. B. Glenn, whom she knew well, had false teeth. The witness was positive of this fact.

Ellis Glenn, the woman on trial, has false teeth. The entire upper set are false. This is plainly noticeable whenever she parts her lips.

"I don't know," said C. M. Mayhew today on the witness stand, "whether Bert Glenn was a woman or not, and I don't know that the prisoner here is a woman, even if she does wear dresses, but I do know that this prisoner here, whether man or woman, is the same person I knew in Williamstown by the name of Elbert Glenn, and whom I then supposed to be a man."

Mr. Mayhew, who is a prominent oil producer and a Democratic politician, having been the nominee from this county for the legislature last fall, lived in Williamstown while Glenn was there and saw him almost every day for nearly a year. Glenn had often shaved him and he became well acquainted with Glenn's form and figure.

From the hips up, Mr. Mayhew said that Ellis Glenn was the exact counterpart of Elbert Glenn. The face could not be mistaken and the eyes in particular, which were rather peculiar, were so much like Elbert Glenn's that there could be no mistake. He said Bert Glenn had a low, soft voice, small hands and feet, and never wore mustache or beard.

The defense has laid the foundation for two strong points. These two points are that Elbert Glenn while living at Williamstown cut a severe gash in his hand on the sharp edge of a beef bone in the meatshop where he was employed, which must necessarily have left a scar. The other is that Elbert Glenn did not limp, had no imperfection in his gait and was generally considered sound in limb and perfect in form.

These two points have been emphasized in the examination of every witness placed upon the stand, and their purport is apparent. The defense will show, when Miss Glenn goes on the stand, that she has no scar on her hand such as the gash described would have left, and that she has one leg two inches shorter than its mate and walks with a very apparent limp.

The most startling declarations made in the Glenn trial was Deputy County Clerk Woodward's announcement that the fac simile of the deed and mortgage book had been changed since he had recorded it.

Witness stated that the person who made the change in the deed of trust proper made the change in the book.

George Hoover, whose name is signed to the alleged forged note denied signing the $1400 note, which was shown in court. He identified the deed of trust given to secure the $1400 note, but testified that the deed of trust had been changed without his knowledge from $400 to $1400. The name of the trustee had also been changed from W. B. Beeson to Thomas Prettyman.

The defense will no doubt claim in the proper time that as the deed of trust was changed after the acknowledgments were taken it had no value, and therefore changing the amount does not constitute a forgery.

William Richardson, who was instrumental in having Ellis Glenn returned from Illinois to this state for trial on the charge of forgery, in which Richardson was the victim, was an important witness. His identification of the prisoner was positive. "She," said the witness, "is the same person who transferred to me the deed of trust for $1400. I last saw Glenn at my office previous to her leaving this state and she was dressed in men's attire. I also saw her in Hillsboro, Ill. She denied being Glenn even after I had recognized her and I told her she had beter not do that as she would be recognized by everyone who had known her here as Bert Glenn. While there I saw some of her property and recognized it.

"Among her property I found a letter I had written to E. B. Glenn at Williamstown. This was found in the trunk of the defendant while she was in jail in Illinois. Ellis Glenn left Illinois in December, 1899. She was brought from the city lockup and delivered to the train in a cab and turned over to my son, who had a warrant for Glenn. She walked into the train and took a seat with handcuffs on. These were removed from her before the train reached Cincinnati. She spoke but twice on the way here. Ellis Glenn did not limp when I saw her in Illinois, and she did not walk with a limp until after she came here and changed her attire. When brought here her hair was very short and she was dressed in men's clothing."

SENDING GRANITE TO ENGLAND.

First Shipment Ever Made to Go From Maine.

ROCKLAND, Me., July 12.—An innnovation in the granite industry in Maine, the importance of which can hardly be estimated, and which marks an era in the granite trade all over the country, will be introduced here shortly.

A cargo of granite will be shipped in August from the quarries of Crotch and Moose Islands, Stonington and Hurricane Islands to Liverpool. This will be the first cargo of American granite ever shipped to any European port and will be laid down in Liverpool at $1 a ton, or $1.25 a ton less than Scotch granite can be supplied.

England has become alarmed over the scarcity of building stone, the Scotland quarries being almost denuded and able only to supply small dimensions quarried at a great depth. English builders have lately been importing stone from Sweden.

SCORCHING DAYS IN THE WEST

Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska Hottest Spots.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS TORRID

NO INDICATIONS OF A BREAK IN THE WEATHER

Some of the Hottest Places Thursday and Friday, Where the Temperature Ran Up From [illegible] 110 in the Shade.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 12.—The heat in Kansas, western Missouri and Nebraska continues without sign of abatement.

In this city the weather bureau at 9 o'clock reported a temperature of 91 degrees with the prospect that all previous heat records will be eclipsed before noon. Last night was the most oppressive experienced here for years. Hardly a breath of air stirred and the condition was almost unbearable. Among the poor in the bottoms especially there was great suffering. One prostration was reported up to [illegible] o'clock.

At Omaha the mercury at 7 a. m. stood at 81, which was [illegible] degrees warmer than yesterday, and at North Platte it was 76, a rise of 8 degrees. The weather bureau forecasts no relief from the hot weather, with prospects for one of the hottest days of the year. The air is close and stuffy and the humidity percentage 76.

At Topeka, the day opened clear and calm with the mercury registering [illegible] at 5 o'clock. At 10 o'clock last night it [illegible] and 84 at midnight with the wind two to four miles southwest. Weather Observer Jennings says there is no sign of rain or a break in the high temperature. At 10 o'clock today the mercury registered 95, 96 at 11 and 97 at noon.

THE HEAT IS WIDESPREAD.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 12.—This will be the hottest day of the summer in St. Joseph. At 10 o'clock it was 94 degrees, the highest point reached at that hour this season.

CINCINNATI, July 12.—The phenomenal heat of yesterday was followed by a cooling breeze from the northeast last night. The government thermometer at 7 a. m. was [illegible]; yesterday at the same hour it was 82. The outlook is for a warm but not oppressive day.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 12.—The thermometer fell rapidly last night from yesterday's record of 103 and at 9 o'clock this morning stood at 80 degrees with a pleasant breeze.

ST. PAUL, Minn. July 12.—The comfortable weather of the past few days continues here, a cool breeze blowing and the official temperature being pleasant.

CHICAGO, July 12.—At 9:30 a. m. today the temperature was 70, while a slight breeze materially aided in rendering the weather pleasant.

HOT WATER IN A HOSE.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CENTRALIA, Ill., July 11.—A prize hot weather story was told yesterday by J. T. Cunningham, a city waterworks engineer. As he told it, the yard hose at his residence was used in the morning and left lying in in the sun all day without having the water drained out of it. Late in the afternoon the children were playing about the place and concluded to turn the water on one of their number. They pointed the nozzle at him, connected the hose and turned the water on. The first water to be forced from the hose was the water that had been in it all day, and when that struck the little fellow's bare legs he ran away screaming, and on examination it was found that the water had blistered his legs so badly that oil was necessary.

TROPICAL HEAT IN LONDON.

LONDON, July 12.—The heat wave here is becoming more tropical. Londoners were not prepared for it, and, consequently, they are suffering greatly. The official thermometers, at 10 o'clock this morning, registered from 85 to 87 in the shade, but the ordinary thermometers showed several degrees higher. There were many sunstrokes, prostrations and faintings in the streets, which kept the ambulances busy. The number of omnibuses running was considerably reduced in consequence of the exhaustion of the horses, and the iron works and ship-building yards were seriously handicapped on account of the enforced absence of the workmen, who were suffering from the heat.

PROSTRATED BY HEAT.

Prominent Citizens of Belleville Among the Victims.

The heat Thursday caused two prostrations in Belleville, both victims being prominent business men.

They were Mr. Hugh W. Harrison, secretary of the Harrison Machine Works, and Mr. Fred B. Merker, a leading photographer. Mr. Harrison was overcome at 10 a. m., while seaed at his desk at the machine works office.

Medical aid was summoned, and he soon rallied, and was removed to his home in an ambulance. He spent a bad afternoon and evening, but the physician pronounced him out of danger Friday morning.

Mr. Merker was prostrated while leaving his place of business on East Main street at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Assistance was at hand, and Mr. Merker was taken to his home, where a physician attended him. His condition is not considered dangerous.

It was the hottest day of the year in Belleville. The mercury registered 104 in the shade.

A Corner in Alligators.

William Armstrong has just received the renewal of a concession which he obtained a year ago as an experiment for the capture of aligators along the Pacific coast, writes a correspondent in the New York Post. The new concession runs for five years. During his year of experiment Mr. Armstrong secured more than forty thousand skins, most of which he exported to France and Germany. The lakes and swampy inlet along the Pacific coast abound in alligators, and Mr. Armstrong secures their hides from native hunters stationed at different points.

PRESS AGENT HER FIRST CARE

One of the Florodora Girls Thrown Down a Three-Inch Embankment, Knew What to Do.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Katheryn Sears, one of the double sextet in "Florodora," was driving alone in Central Park yesterday afternoon when her horse was startled by a racing automobile driven by Archibald Pell. Miss Sears' horse reared and plunged, but didn't run. Miss Sears was hurled over an embankment three inches high and fell on the bridle path. She might have been trampled to death if there had been many horses on the bridle path at the time, but there were none there. The young woman was not unconscious, and sent a hurry call for the press agent.

Although the accident occurred late in the afternoon, Miss Sears was able to appear last night in the performance of "Florodora," after telling the press agent to be sure and have her name spelled with a "k" and a "y."

EDITORS MEET IN ST. LOUIS AGAIN

Annual Session Began at Laclede Friday Morning.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN TO SPEAK

SESSION WILL WIND UP WITH TRIP TO BUFFALO.

Attendance at Morning Session Was Good, in Spite of the Heat.

The first business transacted by the Missouri Press Association at the opening session of its annual meeting at the Laclede Hotel, Friday morning, was to close all the windows in the assembly parlor so the noise of the city streets could not interfere with its deliberations.

The method adopted to exclude the city noise also shut off the air and the members of the association sweltered throughout the morning session.

The meeting was called to order by President Wes L. Robertson of the Gallatin Democrat. He introduced Rev. Parker Stockdale, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Independence and editor of Church News, who offered an invocation.

The rollcall by Secretary J. M. Sosey of the Palmyra Spectator showed that 69 members were in attendance, and President Robertson announced that many others were around the hotel, but could not attend the first session.

The following committees were appointed by the president: Credentials—W. L. Thomas, R. M. White, W. R. Painter, H. C. Bell and John Marens.

Resolutions—T. T. Wilson, W. W. Waters, W. R. Bowles, E. J. Conger and Levi Chubbick.

Auditing—R. W. McMullin, E. K. Lyles, C. P. Vandiver, H. S. Sturgis and J. H. Harris.

Memorial—A. A. Lesueur, Philip Gansz, H. A. Gass, J. T. Bradshaw and W. D. Thomas.

E. W. Stephens, president of the Missouri Historical Society, made his report, and President Robertson made an address, after which a recess was taken until 2 o'clock.

The afternoon program consists of an address by William J. Bryan, former Democratic candidate for the presidency, on "The Weekly Newspaper;" consideration of reports of committees and a question box conducted by John W. Jacks of the Montgomery Standard.

The convention will adjourn after the Saturday morning session. Many of the members will engage in an excursion to the Buffalo Exposition. For those who prefer to remain in St. Louis the Manufacturers' Association will give a river excursion on the Hill City Saturday night.

All the delegates are provided with large silk badges on which is printed, "Thirty-fourth Annual Meeting of the Missouri Press Association. United We Stand for Missouri and the World's Fair in 1903."

The following members answered the first roll call:

Oscar Andreen, Lexington Intelligencer; J. T. Bradshaw, West Plains Gazette; H. T. Burkhart, Windsor Review; J. E. Baird, Kansas City Implement Trade Journal; B. F. Blanton, Paris Appeal; W. R. Bowles, Greenfield Advocate; Clark Brown, Union Tribune; E. S. Bronson, Trenton Tribune; Henry C. Bell, Potosi Independent; E. P. Caruthers, Kennett Democrat; E. J. Conger, Linneus Bulletin; S. B. Cook, secretary of State; Tom L. Cannon, St. Louis Interstate Manufacturer; John P. Campbell, Doniphan Prospect News; Emma A. Chambliss, Springfield Leader-Democrat; J. M. Durdy, St. Louis Record; H. Zeigle, Bunceton Tribune, and W. R. Painter, Carrollton Democrat.

The Missouri editors, to the number of 100 or more, are scheduled to arrive in Buffalo next Monday morning for a visit of several days to the Pan-American. They are on their annual excursion.

Prof. J. N. Stedman of Columbia, a member of the faculty of the State University, who has been in the city three days, left tonight for Niagara Falls and may go thence to Europe.

The visit of the Missouri commissioners at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition to the Pan-American developed the fact that this commission has a plan for the representation of Missouri at the World's Fair which, if finally agreed upon, will make the state display an exposition within an exposition. The commissioners appear to have in mind a group of connected buildings that will be devoted entirely to the resources of the state. If any one of these buildings is to be permanent and devoted to commercial museum purposes, as was done in Philadelphia, the commissioners will have to receive more argument than has yet been presented to them. They will probably make public, at their next meeting, a report covering the plan and scope of the state's display.

Among the visitors this week from St. Louis were: Miss L. Schatz, Miss F. Higginbotom, Joseph A. Lynch, Miss Lauff, Gertrude Rube, Lula Rube, Mrs. R. D. Rash, Elizabeth Rash, Mrs. Samuel D. Winter, P. P. Crayne, R. M. Nelson, J. F. Oldham, Frank Chester, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Wheeler, H. L. Klages, Mrs Le Compte, Miss Louise Heuscher, Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Cook, Carl Munger, J. P. Shiphard and A. L. Sadler.

From other portions of the state Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Steele, Sedalia; Jessie Smith, Butler; Mrs. E. O. Parsons, Sedalia.

HENRY WATTERSON ON BRYAN

The New Day, He Says, Has Dawned; Death to the Fools That Get in the Way.

LOUISVILLE, July 12.—Editorially in his paper, the Courier-Journal, Henry Watterson pays his respects to William J. Bryan and the Ohio platform as follows:

"At last the Buckeye valiants are tired of sucking eggs that have no meat in them. They realize that inflationism in all its forms is a losing card. They want to win. To win they must get together. To get together they must get away from dead issues and line up on living issues.

"Mr. Bryan has had both his chance and his day. His plea for another trial will not hold water. His dictation no longer exercises any power of command. It means simply hopeless division, continued defeat, ultimate ruin. Anybody with half a mind can see this plainly.

"Hence the Ohio Democrats, in state convention, realizing the situation, and acting upon it, put the past, with its factions and dissensions, behind them, and, choosing a new leader in James Kilbourne, they turn their faces towards the future and to victory.

"This is the conduct of reasonable and sensible people, who have conditions, not theories, to deal with, and who do not mean to go to the devil with their eyes open.

"The new day has dawned. Death to the fools that get in the way."

MAN INJURED IN COLLISION.

Driver George Smith Was Knocked From Wagon by Car.

George Smith was perhaps fatally injured in a collision with a transit car at Seventh and Arsenal streets at 9 o'clock Friday morning. He is at the City Hospital.

Smith was driving a dump wagon belonging to Martin Lorenz, a quarry contractor, residing at 2623 Barracks street, where the teamster makes his home. He was going south on Arsenal street when the car struck the vehicle. The shock threw Smith to the street.

He was taken to the South Side Dispensary, where Dr. Eyerman found that he was suffering from internal injuries.

One of the horses was shot by Officer Hurley, because of its injuries.

Alexander Donaldson of 2118 Wyoming street was the motorman in charge of the car.

AS LIGHT AS DAY!

Electric Lights Rival Old Sol at The Pan-American.

The electrical display in the grounds of the Pan-American every evening after sunset is one of the most beautiful sights imaginable and the view from Statler's Hotel which adjoins the Exposition grounds is one which once seen will never be forgotten. Speaking of Statler's Hotel, one of the editors of the St. Paul Dispatch says:

"Statler's Hotel is one of the wonders of the exposition. Altho' but three stories high, it is the largest hotel in the world, having 2100 rooms and its arrangements are such that persons of moderate means may visit the Pan-American without incurring the usual prohibitive expenses usual at such gatherings. You can get a neat, clean room, good meals, promptly and nicely served and every needed accommodation for $2 and $2.50 per day, including breakfast and evening dinner. The dining room will seat 1200 and the morning we left 1000 people were taking breakfast all at one time. Excursion parties of 500 and over are accommodated and stowed away without even so much as a ripple of excitement—so perfect are all the details of management. This is not intended to puff Mr. Statler, for we paid for all we got, but simply to save the Minnesota people and others who go to Buffalo unnecessary expense and trouble."

Intending visitors are cautioned against heeding the stories circulated on the trains and elsewhere about the difficulties of getting accommodations, etc. Statler can and will take care of you. If a party of two or more who intend staying at the hotel for two or more days will take a cab from any station in Buffalo and drive out to Statler's, Mr. Statler will refund the cab hire.

This offer is only good to our readers up to Aug. 1st and upon presentation of this article. Cut it out! and save it.

POLE HOOK IN BACK

FEARFUL ACCIDENT TO WEALTHY NEW YORK WOMAN.

CAUGHT BY RUNAWAY TEAM

Sharp End of the Tongue Caught and Suspended Her Between the Frantic Horses.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONG ISLAND, N. Y., July 12.—Mrs. E. B. Meeks, a wealthy New York woman, whose country home is at this place, was seriously hurt this afternoon. An iron hook on the end of a hay rake pole was driven into her back, and a wound eight inches long and several inches deep was inflicted. Mrs. Meeks had driven into the villiage, with her little daughter, in a cart. The horse was tied in front of a store in the village and Mrs. Meeks and her child went inside. She made her purchases and started out for the cart. She lifted her daughter into the cart and untied the horse, and then started to get in herself.

At the same moment a team of half-broken horses, running away, dashed down the street and ran into the cart. The horses belonged to James H. Doxie. They were driven by a Bohemian named John. His last name is not known. The animals were hitched to a large hay rake. The pole of this had on it a hook, to which a pair of leaders were hitchedd at times.

When the team came into collision with the cart the pole hook was driven into Mrs. Meek's back, just below the spine. The hook fastened in her body and she was held suspended on the pole between the maddened horses. Men rushed in as the frantic animals were kicking and trying to free themselves from the wreckage and held them while others cut the harness and freed them.

It was with great difficulty that Mrs. Meeks was released from the hook. When the collision occurred the driver of the rake was thrown off, and, it is thought, was kicked by one of the horses, as he showed evidences of internal injuries. One of his arms was badly crushed, and he sustained a laceration of the scalp. The child was hurled out of the cart to the sidewalk, but, outside of a bump on the head did not appear to be hurt.

Mrs. Meeks was taken to her home under the care of a physician, and Drs. Halsey, Savage, King and Proctor are now in attendance on her.

DELEGATES ARE ARRIVING.

Epworth League Will Be Well Cared for at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 12.—Already about 2000 eastern delegates to the Epworth League convention, which opens next Tuesday, have reached this coast and are now enjoying side trips to various parts of the state. It is estimated from railroad reports of coming trains that 5000 delegates will reach San Francisco by Sunday night and 40,000 more by the following Thursday morning. The reception and entertainment committee is ready for all who come, and has booked 10,000 accommodations in private houses, with an equal number in hotels over the city. It is believed that this will more than accommodate those who will expect to be looked after by the committee.

An army of men is at work in Mechanics' Pavilion, where the convention will be held. When everything is complete the building will have the appearance of an immense town with its shops and offices. There will be two railroad offices, an express office, postoffice, two telegraph offices and there will be a general press office for the accommodation of representatives of outside newspapers. Along the entire western corridor above will be exhibits of the various counties of the state, on the opposite side will be reading, writing, conversation and reception rooms for the use of all who desire to take advantage of them. On the main floor will be established the information and committee booths.

DECISION AGAINST POLICE.

Judge Talty handed down a decision in favor of the plaintiff Friday, in the case of Mary E. Price against the St. Louis Police Relief Association.

Mrs. Price brought suit in November, 1900, for $1000, which she alleged was the amount of her husband's policy in the relief association.

Charles W. Price, her husband, died April 22, 1896. At that time she alleged that he was a member of the police force and also of the relief association.

In its answer the relief association contended that his term as patrolman had expired Sept. 15, 1894, and that he was retired on half pay at that time, having been on the force over twenty years.

It contended that retired policemen could not retain their membership in the association, that Mr. Price knew this and did not pay any dues after his retirement.

Date Palms to Be Grown Here.

The United States annually imports nearly a million dollars' worth of dates, but it is possible, the agricultural department believes, to raise all the dates needed in this country. The date palm, although grown profitably only in arid and semi-arid regions, it is not in the proper sense of the word a desert plant. It requires a fairly abundant, and, above all, a constant, supply of water at the roots, and at the same time it delights in a perfectly dry and very hot climate. The date palm is able to stand much more cold than an orange tree, but not so much as a peach tree.

Frogs Do Not Swallow Water.

At a recent meeting of naturalists at Chicago Mr. H. H. Donaldson described experiments with frogs, tending to show that those animals rapidly absorb water through the pores of the skin, says the Youth's Companion. He emphasized the fact that frogs never take water by the mouth. On being exposed for several hours to dry air the frogs experimented with lost 14 per cent of their weight, but this was nearly all regained within 24 hours when they were placed in a dish containing water only one centimeter in depth.

COATLESS MEN BARRED

FOR THEY ARE NOT GALLANT,

ASSERTS MADAME DAVID

Proprietress of French Restaurant Asks "Why Should Not the Gentlemen Endure for the Women?"

The shirtwaist man is barred from the Hotel and Restaurant de Paris on the second floor at 209 North Eighth street.

"Will not monsieur be pleased to put on his coat?"

—Photographed by the Post-Dispatch.
MADAME M. DAVID.
She is the proprietress of the French restaurant and has barred shirtwaist men.

Madame M. David (pronounced Daveet), proprietress, will have none of him.

For, says madame, "the women go to O! much trouble to be pleasing to the gentlemen. Why should not the gentlemen endure for the women, eh?"

That is the gist of Madame David's anti-shirtwaist argument.

Courtesy in her lexicon implies endurance. A man must not be only pleasing, he must strive to please.

"On the street, perhaps, a man may be without a coat, or a ditch digger may wear a shirtwaist, but gentlemen, Oh——"

Madame's English fails to carry her idea.

So much for theory. Let the shirtwaist man go to Madame's restaurant and experience the practical workings of her rule.

Suppose he seats himself, cool and comfortable in his shirtwaistlet.

"Will not Monsieur be pleased to put on his coat?"

Monsieur looks up to locate the soft, determined voice, and faces Madame.

Madame is black of hair and eye, small, and charming as she is determined.

Her explanation that shirtwaist men are not served in her restaurant charms, and generally coats get the shirtwaist man—if he has a coat along.

But if he is the genuine shirtwaist man, and lacks a coat, he goes dinnerless from Madame's place.

"Oh! I have told so many shirtwaist men my rule! Sometimes they are offended, but generally they all forgive Madame for her one little rule."

Thus Madame sums up her hot weather experience with that independent citizen, the shirtwaist man.

WEDDING AND REUNION

THE BRIDE DISCOVERED A LONG-LOST UNCLE.

ALSO THE GROOM'S RELATIVE

The Best Man, It Was Found, Was Also a Cousin to the Bride.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., July 12.—Taking a husband and finding a long-lost uncle on the same day is something that astonished even Miss Katie Kipp of Jackson, Mich., when she was married to David H. Clark. The bride's uncle is also the uncle of her husband, although bride and bridegroom are in no way related to each other. Miss Kipp also discovered that the best man at the wedding was a first cousin of whom she had never heard.

Miss Kipp came to Montclair about a year ago to visit the family of her uncle, former Chief of Police Pier. There she met Mr. Clark. It was love at first sight. Miss Kipp went back to Michigan and Mr. Clark wrote urging her to return and marry him. Miss Kipp returned ostensibly to visit her uncle, but really to marry Mr. Clark, and keeping Uncle Pier in ignorance the couple said they were going to Coney Island last Sunday.

Instead they wen to the parsonage of the First Methodist Church and were married by the Rev. John T. Dobbins.

After the mariage they went to the home of an uncle of the bridegroom. The bride was astonished to see hanging on the wall a large picture of herself.

"Where did you get that picture?" she inquired anxiously of her husband's uncle.

"Why, that's a picture of a niece of mine who lives up in Michigan," declared the uncle.

"Well, I'm that niece," replied Mrs. Clark.

Explanations were made, and it was found that the husband's uncle was also the uncle of his wife.

ONE MORE WRECK VICTIM.

There May Be One or Two More as Result of C. & A. Accident.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 12.—Another death was today added to the list of victims of the Chicago & Alton wreck near Norton, Mo., on Wednesday. Miss Lottie L. Still, aged 26 years, of Hornellsville, N. Y., died at University Hospital at 4:30 this morning. She was badly burned about the arms, face and shoulders, and had been unconscious for nearly 18 hours.

Leslie S. Colburn of Pawpaw, Mich., who was not expected to survive the night, was alive at 10 o'clock this morning. Miss Julia M. Hayslip, Chenoa, Ill., Mrs. Anna Morrison, Valparaiso, Ind.; Miss Ora E. Tallman, Valparaiso, Ind.; and Mrs. C. W. Snyder, Jasper, Ill., the other most seriously injured, were all slightly improved today with better chances of recovery.

The bodies of the three unknown dead at the morgue, two tramps and a man supposed to be Sidney Jones of Chicago, remain unclaimed.

No word has yet been received from Miss Still's parents as to the disposition of her body.

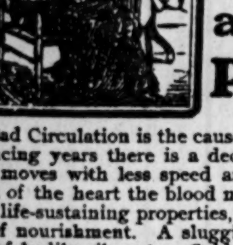
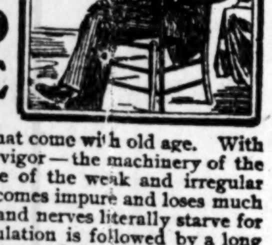
NEGRO BANKERS ORGANIZE.

They Will Hold a Convention in Buffalo in September.

NEW YORK, July 12.—A national convention of negro bankers of the United States has been called to meet at Buffalo Sept. 26-28. The arrangements for the convention are in the hands of John Clinton, Jr., of Philadelphia. It is proposed to organize a national association of colored bankers.

It is said the True Reformers' Bank of Richmond, Va., a colored banking institution, is a member of the American Bankers' Association. It is also stated that there are seven negro bankers in the south.





SSS and OLD PEOPLE

Bad Circulation is the cause of most of the ills that come with old age. With advancing years there is a decline of strength and vigor—the machinery of the body moves with less speed and accuracy. Because of the weak and irregular action of the heart the blood moves more slowly, becomes impure and loses much of its life-sustaining properties, and muscles, tissues and nerves literally starve for lack of nourishment. A sluggish and polluted circulation is followed by a long train of bodily ailments. Cold feet, chilly sensations up and down the spine, poor appetite and digestion, soreness of the muscles, rheumatic pains, hard and fissured skin, face sores, chronic running ulcers on the lower limbs and other parts of the body—these and many other diseases peculiar to old people are due to a lack of healthy blood and imperfect circulation. Restoration to health must come through the building up and purification of the blood, thus adding strength and tone to the vital organs and quick, healthy action to the circulation.

S. S. S. being strictly a vegetable blood remedy and the best tonic, makes it the most valuable and efficacious of all medicine for old people. It is free from all mineral ingredients, and mild and pleasant in its action. It cures blood diseases of every character, even those inherited or contracted in early life. As the system gets under the influence of S. S. S. there is a marked improvement in the general health, and as richer and purer blood begins to circulate through the body the appetite improves, and there is a softness and elasticity about the skin that you have not noticed for years; sores begin to heal, pains in muscles and joints gradually cease, and you find that it is possible to be happy and healthy even in old age.

Our medical department is in charge of physicians who make a study of blood and skin diseases. If you would like to have their opinion and advice in your case, write them all about it and you shall receive such information and advice as you want. This will cost you nothing. Others have found our medical department of great benefit to them—their cure being much more rapid as the result of some special directions received from our physicians.

Don't be your own doctor when you can get medical advice free. Book on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed to all who desire it.

AFTER FAKE PAPERS

POSTOFFICE DEPARTMENT WILL BAR THEM FROM THE MAILS.

TOO MANY PREMIUMS GIVEN

Second-Class Rates Will Be Taken From Papers Which Are Now Burdening the Postoffices.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Postmaster-General Smith has taken up the question of reform in second-class mail with Attorney-General Knox. These two cabinet members agree that there is sufficient warrant in existing law for the rigid enforcement of orders against fake publications which have been admitted to the mails as second-class matter. It was at first thought that the postmaster-general would issue an order setting forth the views of the department and denying second-class rates to certain publishers. It now seems probable that such will not be the course of the department.

Investigation has shown that there are so many publications which offer bona fide premiums that a sweeping order will be almost impossible of execution. Instead of laying down a broad rule, the department will conduct its investigations in relation to different publications and determine upon its action in each specific case.

It is explained at the postoffice department that it is not the intention to refuse second-class rates to legitimate publications. They have not constituted a burden upon the postal facilities of the country. The department's action will be aimed against cheap publications, which make offer of premiums evidently of more value than the publication itself. The postoffice department does not wish to injure the business of those publications that give value received for their subscription price, and yet operate premium schemes. It only aims to correct abuses which, for instance, have developed in offers of merchandise worth $1 and practical worthless publications whose subscription price ostensibly is $1.

Since the conference with the department of justice the postmaster-general feels sure of his ground, and will begin barring certain prints from second-class privileges within a week or ten days. There is no disposition on the part of the department to act arbitrarily, and all persons affected will have hearings, if desired.

HIDING THE REAL TRUTH.

Conditions in South Africa Worse Than British Public Dreams.

LONDON, July 12.—Referring to the government's admission that they had information respecting the shooting of British wounded at Vlakfontein so long back as June 11, the Daily Mail, whose correspondent was the first to make the news public, states that this is only a small portion of the policy of concealment now being carried on. It professes to have abundant evidence that almost the whole theater of war is in a much worse condition than the public is allowed to know. The state of affairs in Cape Colony, in particular, is said to be of a most serious nature, due almost entirely to the belief among the Dutch that the constant efforts of the British to propitiate them prove that they are tired of war.

While the government is constantly saying in public that the war will be fought to a finish, they are, says the Daily Mail, continually making offers of peace to the Boers.

CARNEGIE GIVES A LIBRARY.

He Donates $100,000 for a Building at Denver, Colo.

LEADVILLE, Colo., July 12.—At a meeting of the City Library Association a letter was read from the private secretary of Andrew Carnegie, dated from Skibo Castle, Scotland, stating that he would donate $100,000 for a public library for this city provided that the city would furnish $2000 a year to maintain it. The offer of Mr. Carnegie was in response to an appeal for aid from the association.

MISSOURI EXHIBIT.

The outline of Missouri's exhibit at the World's Fair given out by the Commissioners does justice to the opportunity offered to display the wealth and greatness of the state.

The main exhibit covering 25 acres will be ornamented with lawns and gardens. Ample provision is made for the exhibition of all the products of the state and one permanent building is proposed to be constructed entirely of Missouri materials.

The aim should be to make the exhibit a picture in little of the state. No detail should be omitted calculated to give visitors a realizing sense of the resources and advantages of Missouri. The state should be thoroughly advertised. The commonwealth which for six months will be in the very center of the world's interest should be made as familiar to the most distant peoples as it is to our own citizens.

President McKinley is about to issue the most important proclamation he has ever written. He will proclaim the World's Fair of 1903.

COATLESSNESS CONQUERING.

The little group of coatless men has grown to be an army corps.

The Post-Dispatch suggestion was seized by a number of eastern newspapers and last Sunday the coatless man was everywhere.

In Philadelphia the Board of Stewards of the Siloam M. E. Church announced the innovation. Men left their coats at home and the preacher told them to come again and make themselves comfortable. At the memorial M. E. Church, Camden, N. J., men came coatless and women hatless. The four ushers wore summer shirts with belts and the choirmaster led the singing in all the comfort of coatlessness and palm leaf fan. At Chambersburg, Pa., the pastor of the United Brethren made a declaration of independence in behalf of his flock and the men rose with great enthusiasm and unanimity and shed their coats.

At this rate the coat in summer will soon become "bad form." That is as it should be. Common sense should always be the best form. And what is more sensible than comfort, especially when it appears in the neat and tasteful shape of a summer shirt?

THE DOG IN DANGER.

Mrs. Alice Maynell, who is said to be the wittiest conversationalist in England, is visiting in New York. She is a dog fancier and says she loves dogs, but is now advocating the extinction of the entire canine race. She says that the death of a single child from rabies is too heavy a price to pay for a whole species of the animal kingdom.

Poor old Nero! Poor Fido! Boys have stoned you for ages and men have caught and asphyxiated you in modern days to earn their daily bread; women have threatened you with broomsticks. But when a "real lady," who is also a witty conversationalist and a dog fancier, proposes to take your life, you are indeed in danger.

The anti-dog sentiment has been rabid in England for some time. A law has been passed compelling the muzzling of all dogs in summer. It is to be presumed that they have been muzzled. What effect has this had? Surely a dog cannot give anyone rabies if he is muzzled.

As the dog has on various occasions saved the lives of children and adults, and, as Mrs. Maynell admits, he is man's oldest friend, is there not a remedy against the perils accompanying dogs short of extermination? How would it do to exterminate only the wandering, worthless cur, and compel all dog owners to so treat their animals as to reduce the danger to the utmost?

The three months' drouth in Kansas will give a good deal of emphasis to next winter's speeches in Congress on irrigation.

FREE BATH MOVEMENT.

It is now claimed that the proposed bathing stockade in North St. Louis is impracticable, because, river men say, high water would probably destroy it. The latest phase of the movement is a proposition to turn the unused waterworks basin at Bissell's Point into a bathing pool. The North St. Louis citizens who are interested in free baths will, it is said, bear the cost.

Whatever can be done this season towards enabling young men and boys to enjoy a swim without breaking the law or endangering their lives should be done.

And pending the passage of the charter amendments and the providing of funds for free baths, it is worth while to consider what a boon such baths would be to the city. Among the features of New St. Louis, necessary to make it a World's Fair city, should be a system of handsome free public baths, not mere riverside stockades or makeshifts. Our climate demands this. World's Fair visitors will expect it. If they know we have such baths, they will be much more willing to come here than would otherwise be the case.

When we have done as much as other cities of the size of St. Louis in providing free baths, we shall still come miserably short of ancient Rome or Pompeii, whose citizens knew the value of these aids to health and enjoyment. The baths of Caracalle, in Rome, contained 1600 marble seats for the use of bathers. Those of Diocletian contained 3200 of such seats. And in other ways these baths were magnificent in design and proportion.

Let St. Louis at once make a beginning in the free bath movement. We need such baths much more than did the Romans or than do the people of New York who have their bay and seaside resorts. Public interest in the movement must not be permitted to die out until we have outdistanced contemporary cities of the same importance in the creation of public baths.

The Assouan dam, just being completed by Great Britain in Egypt, will add to the agricultural wealth of that country $12,851,800 annually. This is what stored-up water means to crop raisers. The fact is of great interest during the present drouth.

POST-DISPATCH LAKE.

If the designs, or rather the suggestions, of the World's Fair Commission of Architects are carried out, Post-Dispatch Lake in Forest Park will be, not obliterated, but made the nucleus of a scheme of waterways which will beautify the Fair grounds and be left a permanent feature of the park.

The lake was constructed in the winter and spring of 1894 to provide work for the unemployed. The city was thronged with thousands of men, out of employment, who with their families were suffering keenly the pangs of hunger and cold. The Post-Dispatch fund of $38,000 collected from generous citizens was expended in constructing the lake and afforded a timely relief to the laborers employed. Since that time it has been an unfailing source of pleasure, winter and summer.

The alteration and extension contemplated by the architects, if carried out with due regard to the permanent interests of the people of St. Louis in Forest Park, will be accepted and approved.

The architects' suggestion, in fact, illustrates once more the truth that good flows from good in ways unforeseen by those who do good. The contributors to the Post-Dispatch fund of 1894 had in mind the relief of suffering. After many years the seed then sown comes to fruit in a park feature undreamed of by the donors.

With Mr. Taylor's assurance that "what we take away we shall return a thousand fold" the Post-Dispatch is well content. And we doubt not that the thousands who have derived so much pleasure from the lake will look forward to a redemption of the pledge with confident and pleasing expectations.

The plank in the Democratic platform of Ohio which declares that the acceptance of free passes or other favors from railroads by public officers or employes shall be made adequate ground for vacating the offices held by them should be copied into all the platforms of all the political parties. Nobody believes that a railroad issues a pass to public officers to honor them merely. The railroad pass is beyond question a bribe when it is issued to members of the Legislature and judges of courts.

So far as seeing the world's changes goes, the Younger brothers will surpass Rip Van Winkle himself, they having been imprisoned five years longer than Rip slept. Imprisonment for a quarter of a century means a great deal for the prisoner. If its meaning could be realized, young men would ponder long before committing a great crime. It is especially remarkable in the case of the Youngers that their conduct has been exemplary during the entire period of their punishment.

The teachers who are being sent to the Philippines are not required to know anything of Spanish. The result will be that English will be spoken as badly in our tropical possessions as in the states.

Mr. McKinley appears to have been so busy in giving Kansas a great wheat crop that he forgot to turn on enough water for corn and hay. Neither magicians nor statesmen, however, can be expected to do perfect work all the time.

In writing of World's Fair statues, it would be well for writers to remember that statues are not statutes and that statutes are not statues. There ought to be a statute against the mixing of these words, which differ so much in their meaning.

The cruel boys of Tipton, Ind., who have shown that manufactured electricity will not kill a house snake, did not intend to make their experiment interesting to science. They were merely having "fun" with a harmless creature in turning on the snake volts sufficient to have killed a dozen men. Possibly lightning from the clouds would not much disturb a snake.

The Donkey a Great Leader.

From the Washington Post.

If you should ever see photographs of camel caravans in North China, you will notice that there is one little donkey in front of every four or five camels. The reason for the employment of the donkeys is that the camels have no sense about following a path. They look straight out in front of them, and if not led in some way will scatter and take as many directions as there are camels. The Tartars, therefore, employ these little jackasses, about the size of the Mexican burros, which will follow the narrowest and least clearly marked trail with perfect precision, and almost as well in the night as in daylight. The camels follow the donkeys, and everybody can go to sleep if they want to and trust safely to the long-eared guides of the caravan.

The State Encampment.

If the people of the state of Missouri would elect legislators who would appropriate funds for the maintenance of the National Guard of Missouri, the guard wouldn't have to go to camp without a band, as we have to this year. Napoleon's Attitude Toward Women.

I understand that a suggestion has been made to erect a monument to the memory of Napoleon Bonaparte. I beg that it will be deemed fit to use that money for a more elevating cause.

Cannot you take up this matter now while the town is trying to reform and bring about some improvement in these two very bad forms.

We must lay aside our every day homefolk manners because, from now on we expect company for a few years to come anyway. Your visiting friend, B.

Christian Science and Heat.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In the Post-Dispatch of July 3 was a special from Philadelphia saying: "John White, first reader of Church of Christ, Scientist, was almost overcome by heat. His head was bandaged with damp cloths and he was receiving the attention of friends." I have communicated with Mr. White regarding this statement, and he says there is not one word of truth in it; also, that his statement concerning the heat is garbled. Mr. White sent me an article from the Philadelphia North American giving an interview with a reporter of that paper, extracts from which I give herewith, and would be glad to have you publish in order that any erroneous impression which might have been gained from the article of July 3 may be corrected, namely:

"I have not heard," said Mr. White, "of any Christian Scientist being overcome by the heat. Had there been any such case no doubt I would have heard of it. I know there are many members of our church employed as mechanics in the shops and work places of the city, but none of them, to the best of my knowledge, has succumbed to the hot weather. We are not annoyed by these things."

Mr. White is a member of the Philadelphia bar, a silvery-haired man of fine intelligence. He speaks slowly and with impressive dignity. He is a member of the Christian Science cult's publication committee for Pennsylvania.

"I do not say," Mr. White explained, as his visitor mopped the welling perspiration from his brow, "that I am insensible to the heat. Nothing of the sort. But I utter no complaint. The moment you complain you are uttering things which are contrary to the truth. In truth, there is no heat. You feel it merely in a mortal sense. You complain and give expression to morbid thought. Thus the evil results. We do not complain. We have not these morbid thoughts. We are not injuriously affected. You see, it is a difference of tendency.

"Christian Science is guided by the grand principle of common sense. We are able to withstand heat because we do not exaggerate conditions. We possess the understanding that all these inharmonious conditions, the result of morbid thought, do not come from God.

"We are able to withstand the morbid effects of these conditions that lead mortals to heat prostration, sunstroke and nervous disorders. We are protected by clean, true thought, in which there is the minimum of sin."

A Young Wife's View.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

We have read with some interest the recent discussion on the theme of the time-abused mother-in-law. Has she merited this abuse? So far we have not been able to decide whether the troublesome mother-in-law is the rule or the exception in the general class.

Experience as well as unlimited observation enables most of us to advance a theory of some sort. I hold that we, the young wives of the world, either make or break the so-called mother-in-law. Man is more inclined to hide the infirmities of his partner's nature than is woman. She is tempted to seek refuge in the sympathetic heart of a mother, and herein lurks the danger, the keynote to the discord.

If that mother is the ideal, sensible woman we need have no fears as to the outcome of that weak act on the part of the daughter. This mother will preach forbearance, reminding the child that she herself is not a creature all perfect.

But since we have on the other hand the selfish, interfering mother, we must admit that the mother-in-law in many an instance has wrecked the home and still continues to mar its happiness, inasmuch as she has failed to teach the child to stand alone, to fight its own battles and form its own truce.

Speak of Her as Mother.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Just now the mother-in-law is under pretty general discussion in private correspondence as well as through the columns of your paper. The other day I read a letter from one lady to another in which the writer said of her mother-in-law, "Well, I can't find any fault in mine, more than that I think she is too good natured. I wish everyone had so kind and good a mother."

It will be observed the writer cuts off the words "in-law." The elimination of those suffixes is in itself sufficient tribute to the excellence of this mother-in-law, had not the preceding encomium been written. The writer is herself a very good, kind and thoughtful woman, though too high-minded to offer flattery. The mother-in-law can well appreciate her kindly estimate.

MICHAEL STROGOFF

The Courier of the Czar.

BY JULES VERNE.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

At a grand fete in the New Palace the Czar receives word of a serious rebellion among his Tartar subjects, headed by a traitor named Ivan Ogareff. The telegraph wire has been cut at Tomsk, on the frontier, and messages cannot be sent or received from the seat of disturbance.

Alcide Jolivet, correspondent of a Paris journal, whose name he keeps secret, and Harry Blount, representing the London Daily Telegraph, happen to be at the fete and seem to be well informed as to the rebellion.

It is necessary to send a courier and Michael Strogoff is recommended for the task, which is extremely difficult and dangerous.

In an interview, Strogoff is given a letter by the Czar, to deliver to the Grand Duke, his brother, at Irkutsk, to do which he must travel a long distance through the country in rebellion without betraying his trust. He must not even pause to see his old mother at Omsk, through which he would pass. He promises, and sets out.

On the train to Nijni-Novgorod, which is the first stage of the journey, Strogoff travels as a merchant. The two newspaper correspondents are aboard.

There is also a young woman who is going to Irkutsk, and in whom Strogoff becomes intensely interested. She appears to have some mysterious mission. At the Nigni-Novogovod station she disappears.

While waiting for a steamer to continue his journey, Strogoff hears a proclamation by the governor that no Russian subjects will be permitted to leave the province he is in.

Strogoff finds the young Livonian woman and gets police permission to continue his journey, taking her with him as his sister.

On the boat going down the Volga Strogoff overhears a talk between two apparent gypsies that convinces him spies are on his track.

CHAPTER XI.

A STORM IN THE URAL MOUNTAINS.

The Ural Mountains extend in a length of nearly three thousand versts between Europe and Asia. Whether they are called the Urals, which is the Tartar, or the Poyas, which is the Russian name, they are correctly so termed; for these names signify "belt" in both languages. Rising on the shores of the Arctic Sea, they reach the borders of the Caspian. Such was the barrier to be crossed by Michael Strogoff before he could enter Siberian Russia, and, as has been said, he acted wisely in taking the road leading from Perm to Ekaterenburg, situated on the eastern slope of the Ural Mountains. This was the easiest and surest route, as it was that of all the commerce of Central Asia. The mountains could be crossed in one night, if no accident happened. Unfortunately, thunder muttering in the distance announced that a storm was at hand. The electric tension was such that it could not be dispersed without a tremendous explosion, which, in the peculiar state of the atmosphere, would be very terrible.

Michael took care that his young companion should be as well protected as possible. The hood, which might have been easily blown away, was fastened more securely with ropes, crossed above and at the back. The traces were doubled, and as an additional precaution, the nave boxes were stuffed with straw, as much to increase the strength of the wheels as to lessen the jolting, unavoidable on a dark night. Lastly, the fore and hinder parts, connected simply by the axles to the body of the tarantass, were joined one to the other by a cross-bar, fixed by means of pins and screws. This bar took the place of the curved bar which in berlins, suspended on the "swansneck," fastens the two axles one to the other.

Nadia resumed her place in the cart, and Michael took his seat beside her. Before the lowered hood hung two leathern curtains, which would in some degree protect the travelers against the rain.

Two great lanterns, suspended on the left side of the iemschik's seat, threw a pale glimmer, scarcely sufficient to light the way, but serving as warning lights to prevent any other carriage from running into them.

It was well that all these precautions were taken, in expectation of a rough night.

The order was given to the iemschik, and away rattled the tarantass up the first slopes of the Ural Mountains.

It was 8 o'clock, and darkness was coming on in spite of the lengthened twilight of these latitudes. Masses of vapor, as yet disturbed by no wind, hung in the vault of heaven. Although they had no lateral motion, they were evidently gradually approaching the earth. Some of these clouds, emitting a lurid glare, enveloped the mountains, on descending, as if chased down by some upper storm. The road led up toward these dense masses, and should the clouds not soon resolve into rain, the fog would be such that the tarantass would be unable to advance without the danger of falling over some precipice. The Ural chain does not attain any very great height, the highest summit not being more than five thousand feet. Eternal snow is there unknown, and what is piled up by the Siberian winter is soon melted by the summer sun. Shrubs and trees grow to a considerable height. The iron and copper mines, as well as those of precious stones, draw a considerable number of workmen to that region. Also, those villages, termed gavody, are there met with pretty frequently, and the road through the great passes is easily practicable.

But what is easy enough in fine weather and broad daylight, offers difficulties and perils when the elements are engaged in fierce warfare, and the traveler is in the midst of it.

Michael Strogoff knew from former experience what a storm in the mountains was, and perhaps this would be as terrible as the snow storms which burst forth with such vehemence in the winter.

The calmness of the atmosphere was very threatening, the air being perfectly still. It was just as if nature were half stifled, and could no longer breathe; her lungs, that is to say, those gloomy, dense clouds not being able to perform their functions. The silence would have been complete but for the grinding of the wheels of the tarantass over the road, the creaking of the axles and boards, the snorting of the horses, and the clattering of their iron hoofs among the pebbles, sparks flying out on every side.

The road was perfectly deserted. The tarantass encountered neither pedestrians nor horsemen, nor a vehicle of any description, in the narrow defiles of the Ural, on this threatening night. Not even the fire of a charcoal burner was visible in the woods, not an encampment of miners near the mines, not a hut among the brushwood.

Under these peculiar circumstances, it might have been allowable to postpone the journey across the mountains till the morning. Michael Strogoff, however, had not hesitated, he had no right to stop, but then—and it began to cause him some anxiety—what possible reason could those travelers in the telga ahead have for being so imprudent?

Michael remained thus on the lookout for some time. About 11 o'clock lightning began to blaze continuously in the sky. The shadows of huge pines at different elevations appeared and disappeared in the rapid light. Sometimes when the tarantass neared the side of the road, deep gulfs, lit up by the flashes, could be seen yawning beneath them. From time to time, on their vehicle giving a worse lurch than usual, they knew that they were crossing a bridge of roughly hewn planks thrown over some chasm, thunder appearing actually to be roaring below them. Besides this, a booming sound filled the air, which increased as they mounted higher. With these different noises rose the shouts and exclamations of the iemschik, sometimes scolding, sometimes coaxing his poor beasts, who were suffering more from the oppression of the air than the roughness of the roads. Even the bells on the shafts could no longer rouse them, and they stumbled every instant.

"At what time shall we reach the top of the ridge?" asked Michael of the iemschik.

"At 1 o'clock in the morning, if we ever get there at all," replied he, with a shake of his head.

"Why, my friend, this will not be your first storm in the mountains, will it?"

"No, and pray God it may not be my last!"

"Are you afraid?"

"No, I'm not afraid; but I repeat that I think you were wrong in starting."

"I should have been still more wrong had I stayed."

"Hold up, my pigeons," cried the iemschik; it was his business to obey, not to question.

Just then a distant noise was heard, shrill whistling through the atmosphere, so calm a minute before. By the light of a dazzling flash, almost immediately followed by a tremendous clap of thunder, Michael could see huge pines on a high peak, bending before the blast. The wind was unchanged, but as yet it was the upper air alone which was disturbed. Successive crashes showed that many of the old and lightly rooted trees had been unable to resist the burst of the hurricane. An avalanche of shattered trunks swept across the road and dashed over the precipice on the left, 200 feet in front of the tarantass.

The horses stopped short.

"Get up, my pretty doves!" cried the iemschik, adding the cracking of his whip to the rumbling of the thunder.

Michael took Nadia's hand.

"Are you asleep, sister?" he asked.

"No, brother."

"Be ready for anything; here comes the storm!"

"I am ready."

Michael Strogoff had only just time to draw the leathern curtains when the storm was upon them.

The iemschik leaped from his seat and seized the horses' heads, for terrible danger threatened the whole party.

The tarantass was at a standstill at a turning of the road, down which swept the hurricane; it was absolutely necessary to hold the animals' heads to the wind, for if the carriage was taken broadside it must infallibly capsize and be dashed over the precipice. The frightened horses reared, and their driver could not manage to quiet them. His friendly expressions had been succeeded by the most insulting epithets. Nothing was of any use. The unfortunate animals, blinded by the lightning, terrified by the incessant peals of thunder, rattling like artillery among the rocks, threatened every instant to break their traces and escape. The iemschik had no longer any control over his team.

At that moment Michael Strogoff threw himself from the tarantass and rushed to his assistance. Endowed with more than common strength, he managed, though not without difficulty, to master the horses.

The storm now raged with redoubled fury. A perfect avalanche of stones and trunks of trees began to roll down the slope above them.

"We cannot stop here," said Michael.

"We cannot stop anywhere," returned the iemschik, all his energies apparently overcome by terror. "The storm will soon send us to the bottom of the mountains, and that by the shortest way."

"Take you that horse, coward," returned Michael, "I'll take this one."

A fresh burst of the storm interrupted him. The driver and he were obliged to crouch upon the ground to avoid being blown down. But the carriage, notwithstanding their efforts and those of the horses, was gradually moving back, and had it not been stopped by the trunk of a tree, it would have been forced over the edge of the precipice.

"Do not be afraid, Nadia!" cried Michael Strogoff.

"I'm not afraid," replied the young Livonian, her voice not betraying the slightest emotion.

The rumbling of the thunder ceased for an instant, the terrible blast had swept past into the gorge below.

"Will you go back?" said the iemschik.

"No, we must go on! Once past this turning, we shall have the shelter of the slope."

"But the horses won't move."

"Do as I do, and drag them on."

"The storm will come back!"

"Do you mean to obey?"

"Do you order it?"

"The Father orders it!" answers Michael, for the first time invoking the all-powerful name of the Emperor.

"Forward, my swallows!" cried the iemschik, seizing one horse, while Michael did the same to the other.

Thus urged, the horses began to struggle onward. They could no longer rear, and the middle horse not being hampered by the others, could keep in the center of the road. It was with the greatest difficulty that either man or beasts could stand against the wind, and for every three steps they took in advance, they lost one, and even two, by being forced backward. They slipped, they fell, they got up again. The vehicle ran a great risk of being smashed. If the hood had not been securely fastened, it would have been blown away long before this. Michael Strogoff and the iemschik took more than two hours in getting up this bit of road, only half a verst in length, so directly exposed was it to the lashing of the storm. The danger there was not only from the wind which battered against the travelers, but from the avalanche of stones and broken trunks which were hurtling through the air above their heads.

Suddenly, during a flash of lightning, one of these masses was seen crashing and rolling down the mountain toward the tarantass.

Michael Strogoff in vain brought his whip down on the team; they refused to move. But a few feet further on, and the mass would pass behind them!

Michael saw the tarantass struck, his companion crushed; he saw there was no time to drag her from the vehicle.

Then, possessed in this hour of peril with superhuman strength, he threw himself behind it, and, planting his feet on the ground, by main force placed it out of danger.

The enormous mass as it passed grazed his chest, taking away his breath as though it had been a cannon ball, then, crushing to powder the flints on the road, it bounded into the abyss below.

"Oh, brother!" cried Nadia, who had seen it all by the light of the flashes.

"Nadia," replied Micheal, "fear nothing!"

"It is not on my own account that I fear."

"God is with us, sister!"

"With me truly, brother, since he has sent thee in my way," murmured the young girl.

The impetus the tarantass had received was not lost, and the tired horses once more moved forward. Dragged, so to speak, by Michael and the iemschik, they toiled on toward a narrow pass, lying north and south, where they would be protected from the direct sweep of the tempest. At one end a huge rock jutted out, rund the summit of which whirled an eddy. Behind the shelter of the rock there was a comparative calm; yet once within the circumference of the cyclone, neither man nor beast could resist its power.

The storm was now at its height. The lightning filled the defile, and the thunderclaps had become one continued peal. The ground, struck by the concussion, trembled as though the whole Ural chain was shaken to its foundations.

Happily the tarantass could be so placed that the storm might strike it obliquely. But the counter currents, directed toward it by the slope, could not be so well avoided, and so violent were they that every instant it seemed as though it would be dashed to pieces against the rocks.

Nadia was obliged to leave her seat, and Michael by the light of one of the lanterns discovered an excavation bearing the marks of the miner's pick, where the young girl could rest in safety until they were once more ready to make a start.

Just then—it was 1 o'clock in the morning—the rain began to fall in torrents, and this in addition to the wind made the storm truly frightful, without, however, extinguishing the lightning. To continue the journey at present was utterly impossible. Besides, having reached this pass, they had only to descend the slopes of the Ural Mountains, and to descend now, with the road torn up by a thousand mountain torrents, in these eddies of wind and rain, was utter madness.

"To wait is indeed serious," said Michael, "but it must certainly be done to avoid still longer detentions. The very violence of the storm makes me hope that it will not last long. About 3 o'clock the day will begin to break, and the descent, which we cannot risk in the dark, we shall be able, if not with ease, at least without such danger, to attempt after sunrise."

"Let us wait, brother," replied Nadia, "but if you delay, let it not be to spare me fatigue."

"Nadia, I know that you are ready to brave everything; but in exposing both of us I risk more than my life, more than yours—I am not fulfilling my task, that duty which is before everything else I must accomplish."

"A duty!" murmured Nadia.

Just then a bright flash lit up the sky, and seemed, so to speak, to volatilize the rain. Then a loud clap followed. The air was filled with a sulphurous, suffocating vapor, and a clump of huge pines, struck by the electric fluid, scarcely twenty feet from the tarantass, flamed up like a gigantic torch.

The iemschik was struck to the ground by a counter shock, but found himself unhurt.

Just as the last growlings of the thunder were lost in the recesses of the mountain, Michael felt Nadia's hand pressing his, and he heard her whisper these words in his ear:

"Cries, brother! Listen!"

LUCK COMES TO CALAMITY JANE

Home Found for the Famous Frontier Woman Character.

ILL IN THE HUT OF A NEGRESS

SHE WILL GO BACK TO BUFFALO TO END HER LIFE.

Strange Woman Has Been Known to and Has Served Custer, Reno, Egan and Other Famous Indian Fighters.

ANACONDA, Mont., July 12.—Mrs. Josephine Winfield Brake of Buffalo, N. Y., authoress and Washington correspondent for a New York newspaper, has been in Montana for the past week searching for "Calamity Jane," the noted frontierswoman. Yesterday Mrs. Brake discovered Calamity Jane in the hut of a negress at Horr, near Livingston. The poor woman was suffering with fever and was broken in spirit.

Her acceptance of the offer of Mrs. Brake to take Calamity to her old home in Buffalo where she could spend the remainder of her days in comfort, was pathetic in the extreme, and the noted frontierswoman wept like a child.

Calamity Jane has been on the frontier since she was young girl. She was in the Black Hills at the killing of Wild Bill (William Hickok), and it is said it was she who captured his murderer. She rendered valuable services to Custer, Reno, Egan and other Indian fighters.

Of late years she has drifted about the state from place to place, making a livelihood as best she could. During the summer she sold pictures of herself to park tourists. During the last couple of years she has been ill a considerable portion of the time. The newspapers printed columns about her, through which the attention of Gen. Egan and many other friends of the woman was called to the plight of their friends of early days. The result is that Mrs. Brake took the step mentioned.

The two women have left Livingston for Buffalo.

Calamity Jane is about 50 years old. Her maiden name was Canary, and she is said to be from New York. The last man she married was a drayman of Livingston named Burk.

WABASH'S NEW EQUIPMENT.

Luxurious Passenger Trains to Buffalo and Kansas City.

The new passenger equipment turned out by the Pullman shops for the Wabash service between St. Louis and Buffalo and St. Louis and Kansas City is winning golden opinions from all who have seen it.

New broad vestibuled chair cars and sleepers, cafe, library, observation and combination baggage and smoking cars are now being run on the Pan-American special, which leaves St. Louis at 1:05 p. m., arriving in Buffalo at 8:20 the following morning.

New vestibuled chair cars and combination coaches are also run on train No. 3, which leaves St. Louis at 9 a. m. and arrives at Kansas City at 5:15 daily.

The order, which is now being delivered, includes 55 passenger cars, of which two are baggage, eight combination, 30 coach, 10 chair, three cafe and two dining cars. The finish is in selected mahogany and St. Jago mahogany and all have the half Empire deck. The lighting is by Pintsch gas, except in the case of the cafe, dining and some of the chair cars, which are lighted by electricity, the fixtures being especially designed for these cars.

The dining and cafe cars, says General Passenger and Ticket Agent C. S. Crane, represent the highest stage of development of modern car building.

TRAVELING CRANE CAUGHT HIM.

Joseph Wangler Was Swung Thirty Feet in Air.

Joseph Wangler, 18 years old, of 2709 Morgan street, was caught by a traveling crane at the John O'Brien boiler works, Eleventh and Mullanphy streets, Thursday afternoon, and lifted 30 feet in the air.

His arm, which was caught by the hook of the crane just as the machinery was started, was broken in three places.

Wangler was not noticed by the other workmen, and his cries were lost in the noise of the place. One of the men chanced to see his body in the clutches of the machine, and the crane was immediately stopped.

Wangler was unconscious when taken down and was removed to his home. Dr. Wells of 2503 Cass avenue, who attended him, found two small fractures and a compound fracture of the left arm.

DOSE OF POWDERED LYE.

Mrs. Lizzie Carney Took It, but Will Not Die.

No heat cases were received at the City Hospital Thursday night or Friday morning.

The epidemic of attempted suicides which began with the hot spell continues. Four persons weary of living were received at the hospital Thursday.

The list was increased Friday morning by Mrs. Lizzie Carney, aged 25, who swallowed powdered lye. She will recover. Domestic infelicity is the cause.

In the last month 25 women and 10 men, who preferred not to live, were numbered among the hospital cases.

Strenuous existence for the St. Louis and New York baseball teams will be the order for the next four days, beginning Friday. The battle between the Giants and the Cardinals will decide which shall top the other in the League race.

The peculiar part of the situation is that, notwithstanding the teams are tied now, St. Louis will be in the lead even should the clubs break even on games during the series. If the New York team wins two of the four games to be played its percentage will be .548, while that of St. Louis will be one point more, .549. This is made possible by the fact that New York, having played fewer games than the Cardinals, goes back further for each contest lost. In order to definitely pass St. Louis the Giants will have to take three contests.

Donovan has no idea, however, of being contented with a nominal advantage and expects to break the tie in favor of his team at the first game and hold the advantage through the series.

The determination may be more easily made than carried out. Davis' men are still playing a strong game, and, while they hardly appear the equals of the local band on recent form, are still extremely dangerous. The Giants have experienced a rearrangement since their last appearance here, which may have strengthened the aggregation. Strang is back on second base, with Buelow on third. Davis, who has been out of the game, afflicted with blood poisoning, is back at short and McBride is now filling right field.

Both teams enjoyed a day's rest Thursday and should be in excellent shape for Friday's contest.

According to the probabilities of managers, Powell and Mathewson will be the opposing box artists, and fur certainly will fly before either team records a victory. Wee Willie Sudhoff, so long retired to oblivion, will not be used for the first game, though, according to Burkett, he was being saved for the special purpose of rubbing it into the Greater New Yorkers.

The St. Louis team is beginning to command the respect of the Philistines of the East, who so long have ignored the claims of the Cardinals. It is mainly a recognition due to fear, although, in a few scattered instances, an unbiased tribute is paid to the excellence of the Donovanites.

Hanlon of the Brooklyns thought St. Louis the hardest team in the League to beat. He had cause.

Davis of the New Yorks also expressed a profound respect for the locals, also not without good reason.

Catcher McGuire of the Brooklyn aggregation had much to say of the Cardinals before leaving, the majority of it being of a complimentary nature. He thinks the team will certainly finish one-two-three, and that it is strong in every department save in the box.

It was his idea that the team was wearing its good pitchers out and would on that account be threatened with a weakening spell later in the season.

It is perhaps a good point, and offers the only excuse for a possible decline in the local team's work.

It is fortunate that Murphy has rounded to shape. Sudhoff seems to have suffered a relapse of some sort and to be unfit to use—at least he has been long enough out of the game to justify the suspicion, notwithstanding the protestations of the heads of the camp. Without Murphy we should have Fisher or Burns, who surely are not on to the National League batters sufficiently to be able to delude them throughout a game.

Pittsburg continues to run away out in front, with no team moving fast enough to win a stern chase at present rate of going. The Pirates in their recent exhibition against the Boston team showed that they are premiers beyond cavil, by winning four straight, three of the victories being shutouts. The Pirates have been lucky at times, but so are all winning teams.

It is the strong make-up of the team that is formidable, not their luck. Their quartet of pitchers is unsurpassed in the National League, or unequaled, rather. They have Chesbro, Tannehill, Leever and Phillipe, and Poole, his last time out, performed faultlessly. In addition they have an excellent fielding team and strong batting aggregation. In short, it is the best balanced team in the League.

The St. Louis team can do lots of things better than Pittsburg, and if it had four first-class pitchers would be a safe bet it beat the Pirates out. As it stands it is hard to figure the St. Louis crowd the better without a touch of good fortune, even though they are playing fast ball.

Figures and opinions, however, are smoke in baseball—they are very soon dissipated by slight changes. Burns may prove another Harper and Murphy another Powell—and there you are.

Many reports are current relative to the paucity of good umpires in the National League. The many kicks registered by players and magnates would seem to indicate that Uncle Nick's men are not equal to the task imposed on them.

It is hardly to be wondered at. One man is not equal to the task of watching balls and bases both. It seems a mistake ever to have abandoned the double umpire system. It is much easier on the officials, and much more satisfactory for the teams. If the old rule were resumed there would be less complaint. Perhaps O'Day might have had a whole face today if he had had a mate to help him out.

The fight between Al Neal and "Cotton" Deters, which was to have been fought at Cahokia, Ill., Thursday night, was declared off on account of the light attendance. Only a handful of sports gathered at the ferry previous to the time of departure, and as expense money was not in sight the mill was called off.

OTIS NEEDED NO ADVICE

Sharp Answer to Gen. MacArthur's Suggestions Indicate That Relations Were Strained.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—There is evidence that the relations between Gen. MacArthur and Gen. Otis during the time the latter was military governor of the Philippines, were strained.

It is noted that on Nov. 23, 1899, Gen. MacArthur addressed a suggestion to Gen. Otis' chief of staff, that a proclamation be issued by Gen. Otis granting amnesty to Filipinos who surrendered; and also declaring that anyone who killed an American soldier after the date of the proclamation should be treated as a murderer. In Washington Gen. MacArthur has been rated as having a very fair knowledge of international law.

The reply he received was: "Your recommendations concerning proclamation cannot be carried out; the legal difficulties of an international character, apparently not understood by you, forbid. No further advice on this subject is desired by the commanding general."

There are several other instances of the same character indicating that Gen. Otis did not relish advice or suggestion from "underlings," shown in the report of the commanding general of the army, just issued.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DELMAR PARK RACETRACK, July 12.—A fairly good card is offered today. All the races are well filled and some good horses are scheduled to start. Sprinters will hold the boards in almost all of the races. Only one event is above a mile.

Twelve 2-year-old maidens will give Starter Wade trouble in the opening event and when the flag is dipped they will go five furlongs for a $300 purse. Lady Brockway was a good thing the other day. She was backed off the boards by her party. After leading all the way she was beaten two heads on the post. She was a trifle short and should be an improved filly today.

Bar Le Duc was tipped for a good thing in the same race with Lady Brockway. It was said by the wise ones that she beat Huntressa in private trials. If Bar Le Duc can beat Huntressa doing anything she will cakewalk today. But news from the railbirds is very unreliable and should always be taken with a pinch of salt.

Anna Elliott will be knocking at the door and if the good things should fall by the wayside, Anna is good enough to win.

A bunch of cheap sprinters will hold the boards in the second race. Jerry Hunt has the speed of the party, but his very uncertain underpinning will hardly serve him in good stead with such a hard track.

The soft cushion that suited Jerry's bad props has disappeared. Now the surface is hard and cuppy. Tobe Paine probably will get the money. He likes the distance and does not mind the weight. He ought to be first home, with Revoke or Omelia in the place.

The third race is a hard one to pick. It is a five and a half furlong selling affair for 2-year-olds. The seven youngsters entered are evenly matched, and it is a difficult matter to choose between them. Audiphone has showed some improvement of late. Under a bad ride he finished right up with Josie F. and Sister Sarah yesterday. With a good ride he should be dangerous today.

But the race really looks like it will result in a duel between Aegin and Bandrol. The latter has plenty of speed, but usually throws up the flag of distress after going five furlongs. Aegin holds on well, and likes the distance. Bonnicoosa has a good race behind Huntressa to her credit. But she also has some bad ones since then.

There is all sorts of speed to be found in the fourth race, a sprint of six furlongs. Sad Sam is making his debut in these parts. Sam has a rare turn of speed, and the wise ones say he is right on edge. But we will have to see him do something first. Until we have seen Sam perform we will string with A. D. Gibson, who has shown on several occasions that he is a sprinter par excellence.

At different times during the season Gibson hooked up with and beat the best sprinters at the Fair Grounds. During the last week of that meeting Gibson made McGruder extend himself to win. Ducassa will run well but hardly has a chance to beat either Gibson or Sam. Maximus, who runs for the spectators only, is among the starters and he always has a chance in the money, no matter what the company.

Milwaukee is entered again today. Probably the public will not fall for the old cripple this time. But just as soon as the betters quit wagering their coin on him he will come along on three legs and win at all kinds of long prices.

Tea Gown looks to be a good thing in the race. She has had a long rest and it should do her a lot of good. Belle Simpson will give Tea Gown the most trouble. Eight Bells will also be knocking at the door.

With a better ride than he got the last time out, Satin Coat may beat Swordsman in the closing event. Satin Coat is one of the most consistent horses at the track, but his owner is so anxious to ride Bell that he is willing to lose a purse or two. Sadie Levy may come along and give both Coat and Swordsman a licking. Sadie has improved greatly of late and will be a hard mare to beat today.

YACHT RACE EXCITING

INDEPENDENCE MAKES SURPRISINGLY GOOD SHOWING.

COLUMBIA PROVES WINNER

Lawson's Boat Leads Constitution Part of Way and Finally Finishes a Bang-Up Third.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 12.—Joy reigns in the hearts of the Bostonians as a result of the showing made by the Lawson cup defender, Independence, in Thursday's race with the Columbia and Constitution. The Boston boat finished a good third to the Constitution, the Columbia beating the new syndicate defender for first place.

On board the Independence, after the race, there was almost as much jubilation as if the Independence had won. The great improvement of the yacht over the miserable showing it made on its last out has encouraged the Lawson people to believe that when the boat has been properly keyed up to a race it will defeat both of the other vessels in any kind of a breeze.

On the first outing of the Independence, when she was beaten more than nine miles, the boat is said not to have been in proper shape, and it is believed that the wind was too light for her.

Thursday a much stiffer wind was going, and meanwhile the yacht had been thoroughly overhauled. Capt. Haff of the Independence said that each trial of the Independence serves to show where faults lie and they are being remedied as rapidly as possible. He hopes to have the boat fit for the next contest.

Thursday's race was 15 miles to windward in a brisk wind. For the first time the Boston boat showed the way to the syndicate defender, having the lead in the first half of the race owing to her superior pointing abilities. Three times the Constitution attempted to cross the bows of the Lawson boat, but was forced to desist.

In the pull for home the Independence fell off and both the Columbia and Constitution passed her.

The run home was very exciting, but neither of the new defenders was able to catch the old one.

The order and times of the finishes follow:

	Start.	Finish.	Elapsed time.	Corrected time.
Columbia	12:25:21	4:55:00	4:29:39	4:28:22
Constitution	12:25:43	4:58:42	4:32:59	4:32:59
Independence	12:25:08	5:01:05	4:35:57	4:35:14

Thursday's race leaves the supremacy between the three yachts still an open question. All of the yachts have been beaten, and, save the Independence, all have won. The good showing of the Boston vessel promises much for its future.

GOING IN TO FIGHT TAMMANY.

All Sorts of Plans and Meetings Are Under Way in New York.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Probably as early as the last week in August, instead of on Sept. 18, as originally intended, the anti-Tammany committee of 100 to select candidates for city offices will be called together. This announcement has just been made at Citizens' Union Headquarters, in Union Square.

So many conventions are to be held after the city ticket has been decided upon and so many of the organizations opposed to Tammany must get their candidates on the official ballot by petition, that it would be almost impossible to accomplish all the preliminaries in the short time elapsing between Sept. 18 and election day. The Union, the Greater New York Democracy, the Independent Democracy and other organizations all must nominate their candidates by petition, and the work of obtaining 40,000 or more signatures will take much time.

The conference has been adjourned subject to the call of the chair, and it is likely to be called together for business before Sept. 1. As soon as the conference agrees on the candidate for mayor, controller and president of the board of aldermen, all the various conventions of the several anti-Tammany bodies will be held.

R. Fulton Cutting said that no names of candidates for any of the principal offices had been suggested.

There was a conference of independent bodies in favor of good government in the Citizens' Union Headquarters last night and delegations were present from several organizations whose work was other than political. Mr. Cutting presided over the conference, which was called by the Citizens' Union. The session was secret, and after the meeting Thomas A. Fulton, the secretary, said:

"We invited every organization that we thought would take some part in the campaign as well as others that we knew would not.

"Some organizations sent letters of regret at their inability to send representatives, as their constitutions prevented them from participating in a partisan campaign as a body. We want to arrange so there will be no waste of effort. For example, take the City Club. They will send out literature. We shall, too. By concert of action much better work can be done by having this all sent from one source."

UNION OF SERVANT GIRLS.

Preliminary Steps Have Already Been Taken in Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 21.—Servant girls and workingwomen generally have taken the preliminary steps for the formation of the union they have been wishing for so long.

Last night the Workingwomen's Union of North America was organized under the direction of the International Union Labor League. Fixed hours of work, more freedom and better conditions generally are the objects sought by the Workingwomen's Union of America.

Another meeting will be held next week, at which it is expected the organization will be perfected.

Mrs. J. Louchridge, president of the Women's International Labor League, said: "One of our prime objects will be to gain set hours for household employes. Girls should not be compelled to work from 16 to 20 hours a day, but should have set hours and time off for amusement and recreation the same as women employed in other occupations. We intended to show housewives that the quality of their service will be improved by giving their help more time for rest."

KNEW THE MINISTER.

Miss Ella L. Covington and Mr. Walter Pocock went to Belleville from St. Louis late Wednesday afternoon and were married by Rev. J. A. Gallaher at the Presbyterian Church parsonage.

The contracting parties are prominent and well known in St. Louis. Miss Covington was for many years a teacher in the public schools and has a very extensive acquaintance. Mr. Pocock is a real estate broker and dealer in securities.

Mr. and Mrs. Pocock give no reason for going to Belleville to wed other than they were acquainted with Rev. Gallaher and went over on a trolley car just for the fun of the thing.

NO MORE CUT RATES

WESTERN ROADS HAVE COME TO AN AGREEMENT.

NO MORE SECRET CUTTING

Harmonious Arrangement Between All Roads Out of St. Louis and Chicago.

NEW YORK, July 12.—All prospect of a rate war in the territory of the Central Traffic Association was ended at the recent meeting of presidents and other officials of the railroads in that territory. There has been for some time talk of disturbances in the middle west and south, and this meeting showed that there had been a good deal of basis for the talk. The danger of the extension of the rate troubles of the west into the territory of the Central Traffic Association became less and less apparent as the friendly spirit of the meeting developed, and evidences of good business were discussed.

J. F. Tucker, chairman of the Central Traffic Association, presided. About 40 officials were in attendance.

The roads all reported good business, and there was decided unanimity of opinion that no excuse existed for cutting rates. A good deal of discussion was found necessary, however, before anything could be decided. It was admitted that rates east from St. Louis and Chicago had suffered needlessly, and before the meeting broke up a decision had been reached to maintain schedule figures firmly, beginning with July 22.

After the meeting President M. E. Ingalls of the Big Four was seen, and in response to a question said:

"There is not a chance in the world that the western rate war will be extended into our territory. The meeting was harmonious. No one had any stones to throw, and all were glad to come to an agreement to maintain rates.

"Previously there had been some rate-cutting on the export business from St. Louis in competition with southern roads. There has also been a tendency to shade the figures on the grain and provision freight east out of Chicago. Both of these matters were fixed up satisfactorily.

"It was a very good meeting. I have seldom seen such unanimity and so many roads, even to the smallest, represented. With all the railroads handling so much business that they experience a shortage of cars, the idea of letting down rates was, of course, foolish. But some cutting had crept in, we do not know just how, and had to be attended to."

Mr. Ingalls said he thought the corn crop scare exaggerated.

"I dare say the corn in the far west may be hurt," he said, "but in my territory it is not injured."

WANTS MONEY BACK

SOUTH CAROLINA DEMANDS RETURN OF INTERNAL REVENUE.

UNIQUE CONTENTION RAISED

It Is Claimed the Dispensaries and Attendants Are State Officers and Cannot Be Legally Taxed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—South Carolina has made an attack on the entire internal revenue system of the United States, which has aroused lively interest in legal and official circles.

Gov. McSweeney a few days ago made a demand on the internal revenue collector for the district of South Carolina for the return of all the taxes collected by the government from the dispensers of liquors in that state since the dispensary law has become effective, in 1893. The collector referred the question to Mr. Yerkes, the commissioner of internal revenue, who promptly refused to recognize the claim.

Mr. Yerkes, who is regarded as an expert in internal revenue law, is preparing a formal answer to the South Carolina demand. His written opinion will be completed early next week, and is expected to set forth elaborately the government's attitude in this novel and possibly vitally important case.

At the same time that this demand was made a suit was filed in the Court of Claims by Franklin H. Mackey, in behalf of South Carolina, for the return of taxes. The amount involved is only $20,000, which represents an annual tax of $25 collected by the government from each man actually engaged in dispensing liquors in South Carolina under the state dispensary law, and also a tax of $125 from the state dispensary commissioner. Mr. Mackey's brief declares that the liquor traffic in South Carolina is not a private, but a state, business. That the men engaged in it are agents for the state and are paid out of the general revenue of the state; that their compensation does not in any way depend on the amount of sales they make, but is regulated and guaranteed by law, and that by levying a tax on these agents the federal government is interfering with the police power of the state.

ONE ROBBER KILLED.

Three Others Who Tried to Rob a Hotel Escaped Thankfully.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., July 12.—Four masked men entered the hotel of Peter Hoke at Yorkville, near here, at midnight last night and encountered the proprietor and Michael Ritzell and George A. Wachter, guests. During the fight which followed one of the robbers was shot and killed and Mr. Hoke was wounded in the leg. The three remaining burglars made their escape. The dead man has not been identified.

BIG ADVANCES SCORED IN GRAIN

Wheat Runs Away From Corn and Oats.

EXPORT BUYING AN AID

WHEAT ADVANCED 3 CENTS OVER YESTERDAY'S CLOSE.

Corn Advanced 2 1-2 and 2 3-4 Cents and Oats Go Up 1-2 to 2 1-4 Cents.

All grain markets made remarkable advances today. Corn, which had been leading wheat in speculation because of the drouth reports, was outstripped today by wheat.

Wheat closed 2¼@3¼c up. Corn closed with an advance of 2¼@2¼c and oats were ½@2¼c stronger.

Many circumstances combined to send wheat up. The strength in corn and oats started the boom. Then came reports of foreign buying in Chicago and at the seaboard, with better cable bids here.

From the Northwest came reports of damage to the spring wheat from heat and rust. Hot winds were blowing in the Dakotas and high temperatures were reported from the Northwest, where rain was falling a few days ago. Traders said the heat would scald the new wheat.

From Kansas City came reports that cattlemen were buying wheat there to feed to their cattle.

Following the early opening advances came reports of heavy export buying at the seaboard. Chicago reported that 305,000 bu had been bought there for export. Exporters here reported that their cable bids were higher than yesterday, but before they could buy much wheat the cash market advanced in sympathy with the boom in the future market.

There was heavy investment buying on the advance. Shorts desired to cover and their bids soon drove the market up.

Sept. wheat sold up from 63⅝c, which was paid at the opening, to 66⅛c, 3¼c over yesterday's close. Then a decline set in, which carried the price down to 65⅝c.

Sept. closed with 65⅝c asked.

Dec. closed 3c up at 68⅝c asked.

July closed 3¼c higher, at 65¼c asked.

Sept. wheat sold today at 63⅝@63¾c, 63⅞c, 64c, 64⅛c, 64¼c, 64⅜c, 64½c, 64⅝c, 64¾c, 64⅞c, 65c, 65⅛c, 65¼c, 65⅜c and 65½c, 65¼c, 65⅝c, 65½c, 65¼@65⅝c, 65¼c, 65¼@65⅝c, 65⅛c, 65c, 65½c, 65⅝c, 65½c, 65⅜c, 65½c, 65⅝c, 66c, 66⅛c, 66c, 65½c, 65⅞c and 65⅝c.

July sales, 64⅛c, 64¼c, 64⅜@64⅞c, 65c, 64⅞c and 65½c.

Dec. wheat sold today at 66½@67c, 67¼c, 67c, 67⅝c, 67⅞c, 68⅛c, 68¼c, 69c and 68⅝c.

All the foreign wheat markets closed higher largely on the strength in the American markets. There were estimates on the French wheat crop, showing a big shortage. Cables from Russia reported great damage to the new crop from drouth. Much of the wheat along the Volga was said to be ruined.

Berlin closed 1¼c higher, Buda Pesth ¼c lower and Antwerp unchanged. The Paris market closed 1¼@1½c up.

Corn and oats conditions remained unchanged. No rain had fallen in the drouth stricken West and Southwest.

Intense temperatures and hot winds were reported from everywhere.

Hope for the relief of the crop is about given up by grain dealers.

Hot winds were reported to be blowing in the Northwest. Cattlemen of the West were said to be rushing their stock to market.

Sept. corn closed 2½c higher than yesterday, at 54⅝c, after selling as high as 55c.

Only one sale of July was made. The price paid was 53c, 2⅜c up.

Sept. corn sold today at 54@54¼c, 54¼c, 54⅜c, 54¼c, 54⅛c, 54¼c, 54¼c, 54c, 53⅞c, 53⅜c, 53⅞c, 54c, 53⅞c, 53¾c, 53⅜@53⅝c, 53⅝c, 54⅛c, 54½@54⅝c, 54¼c, 54¼c, 54⅛c, 54⅝c, 54⅜@54⅞c, 54⅞c, 54½c, 54⅞c, 55c, 54⅞@55c, 54⅞c, 55c, 54⅞c, 54⅞c, 54⅜c and 54⅞c.

Sept. oats closed at 34⅝c, 1⅜c higher.

May sold at 37c, ½c advance.

The closing bid for July was 34½c.

Sept. oats sold today at 34¼c, 34⅜c, 34½c, 34¼c, 34c, 34⅜c and 34⅝c.

The strength of corn and oats, caused by drouth, heavy export buying at the seaboard, shorts covering and reports of damage to the spring wheat from hot winds, caused the wheat market to boom this.

Sept. sold up to 2⅜@2½c over yesterday's close.

July advanced 2¼c and Dec. gained 2½c.

The opening was very exciting.

The market was bare of offerings for awhile, and shorts were frantically clamoring for wheat.

Sept. opened at 63⅝@63¾c, and under heavy short buying pressure and investment buying, the price soared to 65¼c.

Only a few July sales were recorded. The opening price was 64⅛c and then the market advanced to 64¼c.

The inquiry for December was very keen. The opening price was 66½@67c. The next sale was made at 67¼c and then December sold quickly up to 68⅛c.

The foreign markets were stronger. There were reports that drouth was ruining the Russian crop. Liverpool opened ⅛d up and then the unusual strength caused big advance. The close was 1⅛d higher than yesterday.

Receipts of wheat at St. Louis today were 229,350 bu, compared with 196,637 bu a year ago. Of the receipts 20,880 sacks and 213 cars were local and 15 cars through.

Receipts of wheat at Minneapolis and Duluth today were 305 cars, as compared with 142 cars same date last year.

Receipts of wheat at primary points today were 932,703 bu, as compared with 516,000 bu same date last year.

Shipments, 624,889 bu, compared with 290,000 bu same date last year.

Corn Up Almost 3 Cents.

Corn took another jump upward today. The weather map for the West and the Southwest was dry and reports kept coming in telling of damage from drouth and hot winds to the crop in the Northwest.

Hot winds were blowing in the Dakotas and Nebraska. The drouth has spread to Illinois, where corn was said to be in a dangerous condition.

There were heavy buying orders from the country to add strength to the market.

Sept. opened at 54@54¼c, an advance of 2⅜c over yesterday's close.

The market went up to 54⅝c and then fell back to 53⅜c, when the buying pressure carried it up to 54½c.

Receipts of corn at St. Louis today weere 26,400 bu, compared with 52,835 bu a year ago. Of these 21 cars were local and 12 cars through.

Receipts of corn at primary points today were 158,564 bu, as compared with 681,000 bu same date last year.

Shipments, 225,491 bu, compared with 1,075,000 bu same date last year.

Oats Advanced 1-2 Cent.

Oats advanced with corn and on reports of damage to the crop in the northwest.

May sold at 37c, ½c advance.

Sept. opened at 34⅝c, ⅛c up, and then sold down to 34c, the demand growing weak after the opening.

Receipts of oats at St. Louis today were 20,400 bu, compared with 34,800 bu a year ago. Of the receipts, 15 cars were local and 2 cars through.

Drouth Sends Cotton Higher.

With no rain in the cotton belt and intense heat and hot wind reports coming in from the southern states, cotton opened with big advances. The Liverpool market was a disappointment, opening down from 2½ to 3½ points.

The American markets opened with general advances, followed as the session progressed with further gains.

In New York August opened 2 points up and went up 6 more. September opened 2 higher and jumped up 6 more. October opened 1 up and advanced 10. November and December were up from 7 to 8 points.

Rye Market Stronger.

Receipts of rye at St. Louis today were 750 bu, but no shipments were made. Market stronger and No. 2 worth 52½@53c.

Lead and Spelter.

Receipts—Lead, 4505 pigs; shipments, 4240 pigs. Spelter and zinc slabs, 2565; shipments, 3455. Lead steady and firm, with soft Missouri selling at $4.30; chemical hard at $4.40 and desilverized at $4.32½. Spelter quotable at $3.82½.

General Market Notes.

Snow in Orange Judd Farmer says the drouth district now includes southwest Illinois, Iowa and central Nebraska south of the Platte river, where a rapid decline in crop prospects is already apparent. In addition a further large part of the corn in these three states is now on the danger line, and without general relief will go back rapidly. Kansas and Nebraska have lost fully 20 per cent since July 1, and with perfect weather conditions cannot make half a crop. The territory now involved almost equals that of the drouth of 1894, when the crop declined 39 per cent in July. The damage to oats since July 1 has been very great. Heat and blight promise a repetition of 1898, when conditions were less severe than now, and the crop lost 22 points between July 1 and harvest. Spring wheat is less assuring, but the positive damage is [illegible]

Snow issued a special report this morning from 15 counties in Kansas. It showed the average condition for corn in these counties to be 55, against 78 on June 26. He reports the oats condition at 50, compared with 65 on June 26.

An Odessa cable reports that there is no longer the slightest hope of saving even a majority of the crops in the Volga and in the governments of Amara, Saratoff and Gassam. Losses will be great in many other districts. There has been protracted drouth and tropical heat over the whole country.

No rain fell today in Arkansas. Reports come from different sections of the state reporting intense heat and hot winds.

A Liverpool cable says: "Basing its figures on the French government crop report issued today, the Marche-Francois, the organ of the French Millers' Association, estimates the total winter and spring wheat crop of France at 302,000,000 bu, while the bulletin des Holles (Agricole-Echo), the organ of the French Farmers' Association, estimates the crop at 289,000,000 bu. These estimates compare with a crop last year of about 309,000,000 bu, and about 364,000,000 bu two previous years.

Argentine shipments of grain this week—Wheat, 384,000 bu, compared with 408,000 bu last week and 1,136,000 bu a year ago. Corn, 1,512,000 bu, compared with 1,712,000 bu last week and 344,000 bu a year ago.

Joe Bracken wired from Kansas City: "Cash corn selling at 60c at Marshall, Mo. Livery stables here have advanced the price of boarders from $15 to $25 per month."

Prairie hay sold in Kansas City today for $20 a ton. The St. Louis market advanced 50c a ton today. The receipts here were very light.

Many western Missouri cattlemen were in Kansas City today buying wheat and rye to feed to their cattle.

Total clearances today—Wheat, 227,000 bu; flour, 16,000 bbls; corn, 176,000 bu; oats, 16,000 bu; wheat and flour, 300,000 bu.

The first line of quotations in each class is calculated to represent the full range from common to extra. Dealers, however, often classify superlative bunches (all tops) for buyers, which sometimes sell considerably above the highest quotations. The second line of quotations signifies the bulk of sales, and generally represents the various classes as they are sold on the commission market, more or less mixed.

STOCKYARD NOTES.

Again, to all appearances, the demand for British cavalry horses is a thing of memory. Still it must not be inferred from this that it is a certainty that no more will be purchased. Past experience has proven that nothing is certain about the British horse and mule orders; they stop and begin whenever it seems to suit their own sweet will, as they have done time and again. Nevertheless, there has been nothing doing in that line this week, or for several weeks past. The same is true as regards the mule end of British orders. Today it was reported that dealers expected more orders for horses before the week was out.

There were a few extra quality chunks this week, which sold up to a top of $132.50, and quite a few more negotiated between a range of $110 and $125, but the general symptoms of the eastern demand were not as strong as a week or two ago. The passing of part of the keen edge from the inquiry appeared more on the surface, or was indicated, more than it was shown in comparative prices.

Little horses are now left entirely to the variable mercies of a local speculative or city demand. The passing of British orders and the betwixt season period of the southern trade leaves them without any regular, or consistent outlet for the time being. They have consequently been reduced to the lowest scale in nearly nine months, being an average of $10 to $15 lower than the latter part of May or early June. Little 14 to 15-hand horses, which were then selling at $55 to $75, are now bringing $40 to $60, while the 15 to 15½-hand ones that had commanded $85 to $115, sell largely at $70 to $100.

This was a bad week for ranges horses—a rather disagreeable contrast with the weeks of the season which have gone before. And there was only one influence against activity and continued strength—the drouth—but it was sufficient to turn a favorable and profitable market into a dull and losing one. Many buyers did not come, realizing the risk there would be in handling them, even should they be bought cheap. As range horse handling is altogether a matter of speculation for the regular dealers a sort of a summer diversion as it were, most of them figure that it was better to wait until the odds were more in favor of winning. The buyers who did come regaled everyone with tales of drouth and "no grass" in their districts, and the effect was a universal feeling of depression. There was an exception only in the case of the top load, which sold for $50 around. These were good enough to go east, and as the drouth has not communicated eastward an eastern buyer was willing to pay a steady price for them.

Produce Markets by Telegraph.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Strong cables, together with unfavorable weather caused wheat to open excited and higher today. There was practically no offerings on the market, and with a good demand from both locals and commission houses, prices held firm. September opened ⅞ to 1⅞c higher, at 66¼c to 67⅛c. Commission houses sold freely, but in spite of the heavy offerings prices held steady. The greater part of the trading was around the top figures. Argentine shipments were 384,000 bu, against 408,000 bu last week and 1,136,000 bu a year ago. Northwest receipts were 305 cars, compared with 452 cars a week ago and 142 cars last year. Local receipts were 134 cars, 83 of contract grade.

Under continued heavy demand prices advanced to 68⅝c, and the close was steady and 2⅜@2⅝c higher at 68⅛@68¼c.

Continued drouth throughout the West and Southwest caused a strong opening in corn. Buying orders from outsiders were heavy and longs who sold yesterday took on fresh lines. September opened ½@⅝c to 1⅜@1½ higher, at 52@52⅛. After advancing to 52⅞c the market held fairly steady around 52⅝@52¾c. Local receipts were 274 cars, 20 of contract grade.

Sept. advanced to 54⅝c, but declined toward the close, which was 2@2½c higher at 53½c.

Oats opened strong on unfavorable weather, with heavy trading on both local and outside demand. Longs and elevator interests sold. September opened ¼c to 1¼c higher, at 32@33c, but sales were mostly around 32¼c. Local receipts were 123 cars.

Provisions opened dull and steady, with fair outside demand. September pork opened 10c higher, at $14.55, lard was 7½@10c higher, at $8.75@8.77½, and ribs unchanged to 2½c higher, at $8.07½@8.10.

NEVER SAW KID M'COY

ZACH MULHALL DENIES STORY OF DAUGHTER'S ENGAGEMENT.

GIRL IS NOW IN ST. LOUIS

Miss "Bossie's" Father Declares That His Daughter Has Never Ridden in Public—Other Denials.

"My daughter never saw 'Kid' McCoy in her life," said Zach Mulhall, father of Miss "Bossie" Mulhall, to the Post-Dispatch Friday morning at the Planters' Hotel. I never saw him either except in the ring once.

"The story about their engagement is made out of whole cloth. I don't know how it started—haven't the least idea.

"McCoy never was in Mulhall, so far as I know. I never saw him there. If he came to my ranch he would be welcome, as everybody is. But he hasn't been there."

The engaement of Miss "Bossie" Mulhall to "Kid" McCoy, the pugilist, was reported in dispatches from Wichita, Kan., a week ago.

Miss Mulhall arrived in St. Louis Thursday morning from Mulhall, and is the guest of her father at the Planters' Hotel. She has been on the ranch near Mulhall all summer.

Mr. Mulhall and Miss "Bossie" had just finished breakfast and the reading of the morning mail Friday morning when Mr. Mulhall made his statement to the Post-Dispatch.

Wonderful Stories of Her Prowess.

Miss Mulhall has for some time enjoyed almost a national reputaton as an expert horsewoman. Wonderful stories have been told of how she could break wild bronchos and rope Texas steers with the strongest cowboy on the plains.

And all this has been told of a slender, delicate young woman with nothing about her to indicate that she could manage wild ponies and wilder cattle except a slight breeziness of manner indicative of the plains.

"Do you know," said Mr. Mulhall after he had finished denying the engagement story, "my daughter never rode a pony nor roped a steer in public in her life. She knows how, it is true. But all these stories about her exploits at fairs and other public places are absolutely false. She never rides except on the ranch and then it is when visitors aren't around.

"She taught my younger daughter, Lucile, who is now 14 years old, how to ride, and Lucile rode a few years ago here in St. Louis at a fair. That's where all the stories started from."

DRUMMER BOY FINED

LITTLE FREDDIE DECK DISTURBED ENTIRE NEIGHBORHOOD.

HIS PARENTS NOW MUST PAY

Judge Imposes Fine of $50 on Boy and $300 on His Mother for Encouraging Him.

Father Morgan plays the organ
And Jonnie beats the drum.
His mamma shakes the tambourine,
But Jonnie beats thum-thum-thum.
—Old Nursery Jingle.

It cost Freddie Deck, son of Dr. F. L. Deck of 3953 Juniata street, $50 to beat his drum.

It cost his mother, Mrs. Fred Deck, $300 to hear the drum beat.

Freddie's drum was heard on Juniata street by day and night for ten long weeks and it disrupted the neighborhood.

More than a baker's dozen of Freddie's neighbors appeared in the Wyoming Street Police Court Friday morning to prosecute the drummer boy of Juniata street and tell how Freddie had worked his drum over union hours.

Three Are Sick Because of the Drum.

Two women and a man are at their homes on Juniata street sick because of Freddie's drum, declared the witnesses.

They themselves, the witnesses said, had lost pounds of flesh and nervous force beyond recall, to the thum-thum of Freddie's drum.

Solemnly seven men and eight women, all from Juniata street, rose and declared that the noise of Freddie's drum was a visitation far worse than Egypt's plagues.

Whereupon Judge Zimmermann, looking searchingly but vainly for Freddie over his gold spectacles, imposed the $350 fine on Freddie and his mother.

"If Freddie takes his drum to the workhouse they won't keep him there a day," said one witness, when the verdict was announced.

The story from Juniata street of Freddie and his drum is an epic, nothing less.

Two More Cases Against Freddie.

Freddie has two peace disturbance charges to meet in the Dayton Street Police Court.

These cases were made prior to the complaint that resulted in the $350 verdict Friday.

W. H. Smith of 3949 Juniata street filed the complain charging Freddie and his mother with peace disturbance. Mr. Smith charges Freddie with making an unbearable racket with his drum on July 6 and at times prior to July 6.

Mr. Smith charges Mrs. Deck with abetting Freddie and his drum.

Friday Mr. Smith, Charles Graham of 3957 Juniata street, Ernest Havemann of 4998 Juniata street, Mrs. Ellen Fischer of 3961 Juniata street, Wade Arnold of 3945 Juniata street, Mrs. A. W. Teabeau of 3943 Juniata street, Miss Cecil Collins of 3943 Juniata street, Mrs. Elizabeth Graf of 3963 Juniata street, and other neighbors of Freddie Deck testified in Justice Zimmermann's court.

Freddie Was Not in Court.

Freddie did not appear.

Dr. and Mrs. Deck arrived before court opened and left after consulting with their attorney, T. S. Bellew.

Mr. Bellew asked Judge Zimmermann for a continuance.

Judge Zimmermann displayed spirit.

"I believe you people are trying to dilly dally with my court," he shouted at the surprised attorney. "Let the case go on instanter."

Deputy Marshal Von Brun testified that when he went to serve papers on Master Freddie he found the little man faithfully beating.

Attorney Bellew said he would appeal the case to a higher court.

WOERNER SEEKS A MANDAMUS

He Asks Circuit Court to Command Probate Court to Grant Appeal in McPherson Case

Attorney William F. Woerner, representing the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., filed a petition in the St. Louis Circuit Court Friday for a writ of mandamus against Judge Henderson of the Probate Court, commanding him to grant an appeal to the Circuit Court from his order of distribution in the estate of the late Mary B. McPherson.

It was referred to Judge Fisher, who took it under advisement.

The Mississippi Valley Trust Co. is administrator of the estate of Mrs. McPherson.

It contends in the petition for mandamus that, if it should obey the order of distribution made by Judge Henderson of the Probate Court July 9, it would make itself liable to have to pay twice the amount of the estate, which is estimated between $30,000 and $40,000.

The order of distribution directs that the estate be divided between Horace B. and William C. Locke, brothers of Mrs. Mc-Pherson.

A few days before the order was made, according to the petition, a writ was served on the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. from the United States Circuit Court, notifying it that suit had been filed in that court by Jessie May McPherson, who claims the entire estate of Mrs. McPherson under a replevin proceeding.

The trust company contends that, should it obey the Probate Court's order and, afterward, Jessie May McPherson should prove her claim to the estate, it could not plead compliance with one order in defense of the other.

NONE TO WORK OVERTIME

Postmaster Baumhoff Says He Will Take No Chances of Crippling His Department.

Postmaster Baumhoff made the happiest announcement of the season to Uncle Sam's 1000 postal employes Friday morning. It was communicated through the various superintendents and simply said:

"During the excessive hot weather no clerk or other employe of the postoffice shall be required to work overtime. Letter carriers should not be required to make more than three deliveries in the residence districts."

"I believe," said Mr. Baumhoff to the Post-Dispatch, "that we should prevent the possibility of sickness and a crippled department by easing the burdens of the carriers and clerks."

The immense volume of business now being done at the St. Louis postoffice is evidenced in the annual receipts for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1901, as follows:

Gross receipts, $2,156,616.26.
Net revenue, $751,828.35.
Percentage of expenses to gross receipts, 34.80.

For clerk hire during the year the sum of $376,583.84 was expended.

In 1900 the postoffice receipts amounted to $1,924,425.80, showing an increase for the fiscal year of 1900-1901 of over $250,000.

The Curse Of The Centuries.

Like leprosy of old, Specific Poison in the blood was for ages supposed to be incurable. This ancient idea is not yet altogether extinct. It still exists in the minds of many old fogy physicians, who continue to salivate their patients with potash, mercury and other dangerous mineral mixtures, which, instead of forcing the disease out of the system, drives it deeper in, where it lies dormant for a time, and then breaks out again in the form of some frightful skin, blood or bone disease.

I Cure Blood Poison to Stay Cured Forever.

I challenge the medical world for a case in any stage, hereditary or contracted, that I cannot positively cure, never to return, in from 60 to 90 days. My treatment for this disease is indorsed by the best physicians of America and Europe. It is purely vegetable in composition and perfectly harmless in effect. More than 3500 men, many of whom had tried hot springs and numerous specific remedies in vain, have been completely and forever cured by me. Consult me by special appointment.

I also cure to stay cured VARICOCELE, STRICTURE, NERVO-SEXUAL DEBILITY and all reflex complications and associate diseases and weaknesses of men. To these maladies alone I have earnestly devoted 23 of the best years of my life. I make no charge for private counsel, and give to each patient a legal contract in writing, backed by abundant capital, to hold for my promise. Is it not worth your while to investigate a cure that has made life anew to multitudes of men?

If you cannot call at my office, write your symptoms fully. I have the most perfect system of home treatment known to medical science. Address all letters to

HIGHWAYMAN ELUDED DOGS.

He Robbed and Probably Fatally Wounded Ed Webber.

Ed Webber, a farm hand, was probably fatally shot in the neck by a highwayman Thursday, while he was at work on the Seiter farm, near Mitchell, Ill.

After being wounded he struggled desperately with his assailant to protect his purse, which contained $100. He was conquered only when beaten into insensibility.

Threshing hands found him and took him to the Seiter farmhouse, where his injuries were dressed. He was taken to Venice for treatment.

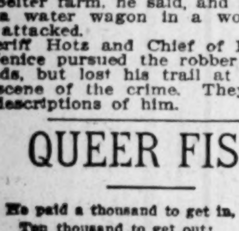
After reviving he said that the man who did the shooting had been his companion. They applied for work together at the Seiter farm, he said, and he was driving a water wagon in a wood when he was attacked.

Sheriff Hotz and Chief of Police Mainz of Venice pursued the robber with bloodhounds, but lost his trail at a lake near the scene of the crime. They have sent out descriptions of him.

QUEER FISH.

He paid a thousand to get in,
Ten thousand to get out;
But he had a million's worth of fun.
So what's the kick about?

St. Louis millionaires discovered a paradise in Missouri, a place set apart by nature for the enjoyment of one of the greatest of all sports. They looked upon the place and saw it was fair, and they said one to another: "This must be ours at any price." So they put their great wealth together and purchased this modern Eden. No, it was not the World's Fair site, but a preserve that is larger and more beautiful. It has been made so by 20 men who pay thousands of dollars a year for the privilege of maintaining it. There is no stronger organization in the West. These men who spend fortunes for simple pleasures will be described and pictured in the Sunday Post-Dispatch.



This man is hanging on a strap in a trolley car. Someone stepped on his toes. He is pictured by F. M. Howarth, one of the greatest of comic artists, who is now making his funny drawings exclusively for the comic supplement of the Sunday Post-Dispatch.

He went where water there was none;
He took no rod or reel or gun,
But with a hammer struck a stone
And caught a ten-pound abalone.

That's queer sport, but it is done every day. The fish which is caught with a hammer has a peculiar foot. What's that you say? A fish has no foot? Now, don't be too sure. This is a new kind of a fish. You always find new things in the Sunday Post-Dispatch. This fish with a foot has transformed a barren white rock into one of the most interesting spots in the world. A great industry has sprung up and scientists from all over the United States are packing their grips and heading for the land of the fish with feet.

There is a St. Louis scientist who catches fish with a chisel and a saw. If the fish saw the chisel the man couldn't saw the fish. But these fish are blind, and so the man of wisdom uses his wise saws on them. This is a modern instance of scientific progress. Read about it in the Sunday Post-Dispatch.

Come into the garden, Maude,
And paddle in the dew.
You'll be surprised on finding what
The dew'll do to you.

Not far from St. Louis men and women have a queer cult. They are dew worshipers. Their queer exercises attract crowds from many suburban towns. All are in quest of something more valuable than money, and they expect to find it in the grass. This strange community will be described and pictured in halftone in the Sunday Post-Dispatch.

There will be a World's Fair feature you cannot afford to miss. It will be worldwide in scope, and it will interest men and women of all nationalities.

Dollygraphs, pictures of beautiful women and tales of doing and daring in every land will complete the best of Sunday magazines.

SUIT TO REVOKE ITS FRANCHISES

Proceedings Against Transit Company Planned.

NORTH ST. LOUIS AROUSED

BUSINESS MEN'S ASSOCIATION TAKES DECISIVE ACTION

Will Incorporate to Institute Quo Warranto Action, Based on Attorney's Opinion That Charters Have Been Violated

Quo warranto proceedings for the revocation of the franchises of the St. Louis Transit Co. and the United Railways Co in North St. Louis will be brought by the North St. Louis Business Men's Association, according to a decision reached Thursday night.

The grounds for this action were set forth by Attorney Lambert E. Walther in an interview published in the Post-Dispatch several days ago.

At the meeting of the association Thursday night Mr. Walther presented a written opinion, the effect of which was that the companies named had violated their charters by changing their routes and abolishing transfer points, and that quo warranto proceedings would lie against them.

It was decided to apply for incorporation papers at once, so that the association could legally take the proposed step.

In his opinion Mr. Walther says:

"If the St. Louis Transit Co. refuses to give transfers for a continuous trip from any point on its system to any other point on its system, then it is violating the conditions of the Central Traction Co. franchise, and it and its lessor, the United Railways Co., should be deprived of that franchise."

The so-called "belt lines" which the transit company has established by looping together north and south lines came in for a round of denunciation from the meeting. President Brod said that the purpose of these lines was simply to reduce the number of cars run and the transfer points. By refusing to run the cars downtown the public was greatly inconvenienced, he said and he was in favor of proceedings to compel the company to show cause why its franchises should not be revoked.

The association decided to give a monster picnic at Hoehn's Grove July 31, on which day the members will close their stores and other places of business at noon and decorate them in honor of the day.

Sixty new members were admitted, and applications were received from the following: Columbia Brewing Co., Consumers Oil Co., Daniel Wendt, William G. Oellermann, Gustave Mueller, Fred Richner, H H. Toeniskoetter, William Sauerbruck, Ernst Stotsmann, A. P. Evers, Louis F Evers, L. Harms, E. A. Medler, Fred Hasenjaeger, H. B. Pratt, Ludholt Lounge Co., C. H. Hoffman, F. Rahning, A. F. QUEER BUSINESS WAY

GAYLORD-BLESSING INQUIRY RESULTS IN SENSATION.

"A MATTER OF CONVENIENCE"

Deals Were Made in the Name of an Insane Person—Collateral Securities Alleged to Be Missing.

John H. Blessing was the first witness called in the bankruptcy case of Gaylord, Blessing & Co. before Referee Walter D. Coles Thursday afternoon.

Those present at the hearing were Trustee Charles W. Holtcamp and his attorney, George D. Reynolds; John H. Overall, attorney for the bankrupt firm; John H. Blessing, Jr., and Guy Billon of the firm, and J. A. Parker, an expert accountant.

The examination revealed the fact that the business of the company was in a very badly involved condition. The bookkeeping was of so intricate a character that it was almost impossible to follow some of the deals.

Mr. Blessing testified that, for convenience, acounts were carried under various names, and when orders were received they were filled by transferring from one account to another, without actually transferring the stock.

"W. Brown" and "W. A. Browne," in whose names accounts were kept, were admitted by Mr. Blessing to be the same person, a nephew of Mrs. Blessing, and he said that the names had simply been used for convenience.

One Account in Name of an Insane Man.

An account carried in the name of F. H. Wall, a former employe of the mechanical department of the Missouri Pacific railway, but for some years an inmate of an insane asylum, was also investigated. Mr. Blessing said he had used Wall's name for transactions made by the firm, and also in other transactions where he could not remember the name of the real party to the deal. The Wall account shows a deficit of $10,000.

Mr. Blessing testified that most of the transferring of accounts took place in the early part of the year, when they were being pressed by New York creditors to cover margins.

It is alleged by the expert accountant who has been at work on the books of the company, that collateral securities which were atached to notes given the firm have disappeared. Mr. Blessing offered no explanation of the alleged disappearance of the securities.

The hearing will be resumed at 11 o'clock Monday morning, when Samuel A. Gaylord, senior member of the firm, will be examined.

FLORENCE ZELLE'S FUNERAL.

Daughter of F. E. Zelle to Be Interred Saturday.

The funeral of Florence Zelle, aged 13 years, who died Thursday afternoon of appendicitis, at the home of her father, Frederick E. Zelle, president of the Zelle Bros. Commission and Provision Co., at 2227 University street, will be held from the residence to Bellefontaine Cemetery at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The pallbearers will be Edwin Schultz, Eugene Sessinghaus, Fred Obermoeller, Arthur Gundlach, Walter Guhman and Charles Hackemeier.

Miss Zelle was graduated from the Blair School recently and was to have entered the High School this fall. She became ill July 3 and her case was diagnosed as appendicitis. An operation was performed Tuesday by Dr. W. E. Fischel.

PROTECTION IS ASKED

BUSINESS MEN AGAINST UNDUE EXPOSURE OF LIVE STOCK.

TORTURED BY GREAT HEAT

Claim Made That Sheep, Pigs and Poultry Suffer While Shown for Sale on Commission Row.

Several prominent business men have inaugurated a movement to secure the enactment of an ordinance prohibiting the exposure of calves, sheep, pigs and poultry in the hot sun throughout the day on Commission Row without water and other needed attention.

They have issued a circular letter in which they protest vigorously against the treatment accorded to animals and poultry while exposed for sale and request support for the movement to abolish this condition.

The following firms, through their representatives, signed the letter:

Friedman Bros. Shoe Co., D. Crawford & Co., Grand-Leader, Penny & Gentles, B. Nugent & Bro. Dry Goods Co., Schaper Bros., Globe Shoe and Clothing Co., Rosenthal & Lehman, William Barr Dry Goods Co., Hargadine-McKittrick Dry Goods Co. and Ringen Stove Co.

The letter says in part:

"These animals, if calves or sheep, are tied to posts on the sidewalk, there to remain, often all day, in the broiling-hot sunshine, without a drop of water, to suffer agonies and tortures which language cannot describe, until death or the butcher takes them away; or, if poultry of any kind, they are thrown on the sidewalk and there allowed to remain in coops that are so crowded that they cannot move about among each other."

The letter states that the public should consider not only the sufferings to which the animals and poultry are subjected, but also the poor quality of meat that is necessarily produced by conditions so unsanitary.

Circular Prepared by Samuel Rayburn.

The circular was prepared by Samuel Rayburn of the Friedman Bros. Shoe Co., who has made several visits to Commission Row in quest of information on the treatment of animals and poultry.

Recently, Mr. Rayburn invited Mrs. Mary W. Calkins, president of the Golden Chain Humane Society, to visit the district with him. She protested to the heads of several firms against the conditions she found there, but, according to Mr. Rayburn, they only laughed at her.

Then, says Rayburn, a policeman was notified, but he replied that he could not do anything.

Secretary John H. Holmes of the Humane Society of Missouri said to the Post-Dispatch Friday:

"Legislation is what we need. We tried to secure new laws recently, but our plans were blocked in the City Council by the cry of class legislation.

"All food animals must be shipped to stockyards and held there for sale before they can be given the proper attention, and I hope the present agitation may result in the enactment of laws providing for this method of making sales."

TOUGH OLD TIMES.

"The old idea," said the lecturer, "was an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth."

"Yes," coincided one of his hearers, "and there were no painless dentists in those days, either."—Detroit Free Press.
